Loffmark Vetoes New Hospital

● Board insists public own hospital land. Page 35.

By JOHN MATTERS

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark within three days changed his mind and said "no" to the idea of building a new extended care hospital in Saanich, it was learned Tuesday.

The proposal was put to the minister as a possible method of ending controversy over the future development of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The Colonist learned that Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, chairman of the regional hospital board and Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, deputy chairman, saw Loffmark in his office Thursday, July 30.

Curtis pointed out that there was considerable acreage bounded by Admirals Road, Colquitz Creek and the Trans-Canada Highway that already was owned by either B.C. Hydro, the provincial government or Saanich.

The idea was that this site could be obtained at no cost and would be an ideal location for the extended care beds proposed for St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Priory.

The regional representatives said this would be an alternative to spending $1.6 million for the grounds of the present St. Ann's Academy and then put another $1.9 million into the building to house the 150 extended care beds that would adjoin St. Joseph's.

Such a development would have given taxpayers, in the one package, the 75 beds that were planned for St. Mary's Priory.

Bennett Honored Freeman of City

At a special meeting, Victoria city council unanimously passed a resolution bestowing the city's highest honor on the premier.

The resolution stated the award was given to the premier "in recognition of his fine qualities of mind and the eminent public services rendered by him to the citizens of Victoria and the province of British Columbia as a whole."

* * *

A formal ceremony during which Bennett will receive his freeman scroll will be held Oct. 15.

Preparation for Thursday's meeting were made by city hall officials during the past few weeks. The matter was shrouded in secrecy usually preserved for important property acquisition matters.

* * *

Mayor Courtney Haddock told the meeting this was the first time any Canadian premier had become freeman of any capital city.

"The premier will have the right to vote in the city of Victoria, and we hope he will take advantage of that privilege," the mayor said.

The formal ceremony, he said, would be an outstanding event for Victoria. Some details, however, still needed more consideration.

"Frankly, we had a little

Does Council Realize Implications?

So the city of Victoria has honored another distinguished person with the highest award it can bestow, but has council considered all the possible implications?

● He may run as mayor or alderman without being a property owner in the city of Victoria.

● He can cast his vote in any civic election and vote on any money bylaw.

● He is allowed to march through the city with fixed bayonet and colors flying.

Who is to say that Premier Bennett won't run as mayor of Victoria in the next election and turn up at the polling station with a fixed bayonet to vote for himself?

* * *

And if anyone thinks that's bad, he should consider the privileges enjoyed by freemen in England before 1835.

In those days, a freeman pretty well ran the municipality in which he enjoyed his status.

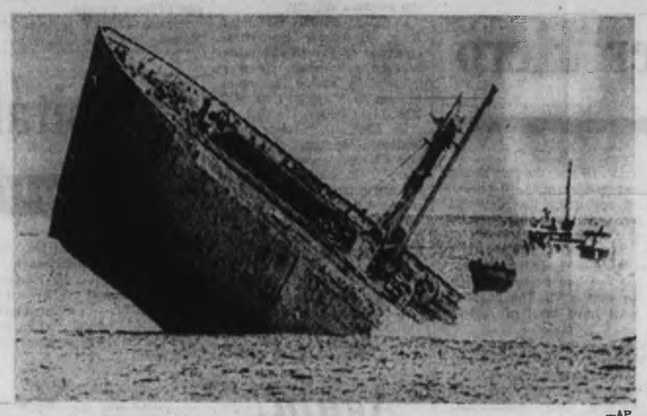

He was a man of great power in charge of trading, exempted from tax. He and his fellow freemen were the exclusive electorate exercising a vast influence in local government and parliamentary elections.

* * *

The freemen's wings were somewhat clipped by the Municipal Corporations Act proclaimed in 1835. In 1882, the act was amended further reducing the freemen's powers.

Never Again! U.S. Pledges

ABOARD USS HARTLEY (UPI) — With a navy patrol plane taking photographs for proof, a rusting Liberty ship carrying 67 tons of nerve gas slipped beneath the waves with a huge splash and sank to the bottom of the Atlantic Tuesday. The United States assured the world it would never again dump chemical weapons in the sea.

The SS Lebaron Russell Briggs, its hold flooded with water, plunged straight down in a charted munitions dump area 282 miles off Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 1:53 p.m. PDT, about four hours after seacocks and valves were opened.

* * *

The stern submerged first, sending a spray of water 40 or 50 feet into the air, before the 26-year-old vessel sank three miles and hit the ocean floor eight minutes later.

Perhaps because of water pressure or the jolt of the impact, four water collection bottles for gas leak tests rose to the surface two hours too soon. Others were to be released automatically over eight hours.

No leaks of poisonous gas or any other hitches were detected at the end of a controversial journey that began early last week by train from army arsenals in Kentucky and Alabama.

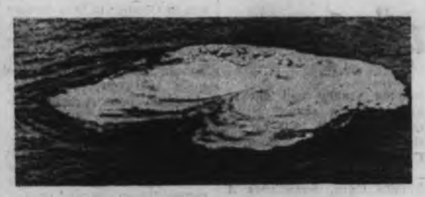

* * *

Hundreds Die

Rain Falls Too Late In Yemen

CAIRO (UPI) — It rained in Yemen for the first time in three years — but it was too late.

Too late to help the starving population, and too late to save the crops.

The Middle East News Agency said Tuesday a four-hour downpour soaked the parched nation near the tip of the Red Sea on the Arabian Peninsula, but it did not say when.

* * *

Officials in the capital of Sana said it was the first rain in the country for three years, and the heaviest in 10 years in a land where summer temperatures reach 113 degrees Farenheit daily.

Medical authorities say 600 persons — and possibly as many as 1,000 — have died of starvation in recent weeks.

Agriculture Minister Mohammed Juneid said Tuesday, "The rain was too late to help the farmers. The planting season has passed without any rainfall and now it's too late and we do not have enough seed."

* * *

International relief agencies' representatives said as many as 1.8 million people are nearing starvation because of the drought. The agencies have begun pouring supplies into the country, now dependent on international help after its fourth disastrous harvest.

A broadcast from Sana, monitored Monday night, said West German planes carrying U.S. food aid had begun arriving regularly at Sana airport. Common Market aid, amounting to 14,000 tons, was due to arrive at the end of this month.

U.S. Observing Egyptian Lines

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States officially disclosed Tuesday it is flying reconnaissance planes over the Suez ceasefire front to watch for violations of the Mideast truce.

"They're flying on the east (Israeli) side of the ceasefire line, said Robert J. McCloskey, state department press officer.

The main object of the surveillance is the Egyptian side of the Suez line. Israel claims Egypt has been building up its missile strength within the 32-mile zone supposed to be at a military standstill, thus breaching the truce which began Aug. 8.

* * *

U.S. sources said the aerial cameras are well able to take photos of the Egyptian zone from the area six miles or more east of the Suez line, where Israeli planes are allowed to fly. The U.S. officials contend their air intelligence is better than Israel's.

A long-awaited state department statement giving the U.S. conclusions about the Israeli complaints now is in final stages of preparation.

The U.S. conclusions were given to Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin by Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisko, officials said. Rabin arranged to fly back to Israel at once.

* * *

McCloskey refused to tell U.S. reporters such details as the type of plane involved in the reconnaissance missions or where the aircraft are based. He did say the Egyptians have been advised of the flights.

At the United Nations, a spokesman said Tuesday Israel has made its third complaint to the United Nations about the alleged movement of Egyptian missile launchers closer to the Suez Canal in violation of the ceasefire.

Israel again delayed Tuesday the nomination of its

Full Report Study Urged By Labor, Management

● Trudeau's threatened postal crunch just around corner? Page 19

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Leslie Peterson Tuesday urged labor and management in all sectors of the British Columbia economy to take "a long hard look" at a report on strife in the forest industry before they consider strikes or lockouts.

Peterson made the request after releasing the 28-page report by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz. The B.C. Appeals Court judge was appointed special mediator July 7, following breakdowns in negotiations between the International Woodworkers of America, representing 28,000 workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agent for 116 coastal companies.

* * *

The report recommends a nine-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year contract, resulting in a 60-cent increase in hourly rates, with an additional 30 cents for tradesmen.

The union originally asked for a $1 increase in one year on base rates ranging from $3.12 to $4.80. The average rate now is $3.54.

If approved, the proposed contract will be effective from June 1970 to June 1972.

Peterson said he had no hesitation in calling on the IWA and FIR to accept the "generous but realistic" recommendations of the Nemetz report. It would be "unthinkable" for any work stoppage to occur in the coast forest industry, he said.

* * *

He also hoped the report would mark "the beginning of the end of an extremely difficult summer in industrial relations in B.C."

There was no comment from presidents of Vancouver Island locals of the IWA. The representatives are still meeting in Vancouver to discuss the report and a spokesman said it would "some days" before a comment would be made.

Other recommendations in the report:

● Appointment for a three-year term of an arbitrator to settle grievances arising from the master agreement, in an effort to head off wildcat strikes;

● A one-half-per-cent increase in vacation pay for employees with one to four years' service;

● An urgent call for a

Three Die in Dogfight As Fokker Hits Copter

DUBLIN (CP) — Two aircraft being used in the filming of a simulated dogfight for a movie about the First World War crashed near here Tuesday, killing at least three persons.

Police identified the dead as cameraman Skeets Kelly and director Burch Williams, both Americans, and Gilbert Ghoman of France.

The victims were in a helicopter, piloted by Ghoman, filming the dogfight scene when the craft crashed with a German Fokker biplane. Both aircraft plummeted into the Irish Sea over Wicklow Harbor, 20 miles south of Dublin.

A fourth man was reported missing. He was identified as James Liddy, a senior pilot of the Irish army air corps, who was piloting the Fokker.

Both machines plunged into the sea and sank immediately.

Several dummy runs were made over the picturesque bay before Liddy's plane came in on a double loop and struck the hovering helicopter.

Freed Lion Turns First On Door-Opening Owner

HALMSTAD, Sweden (UPI) — A self-styled animal psychiatrist who threatened to let his lion loose if he was not granted permission to open a local zoo, carried out his threat Tuesday. But he was severely clawed and bitten himself, police said.

The man, identified as Goesta Backer of Steninge outside this southern town, opened the lion cage in his garden when he was informed by local health authorities that his application had been turned down.

Minutes later he was attacked by the lion and severely clawed and bitten, police said.

He managed to call for an ambulance in his house "but rescuers could not get him out as the lion trotted around in the garden," police said.

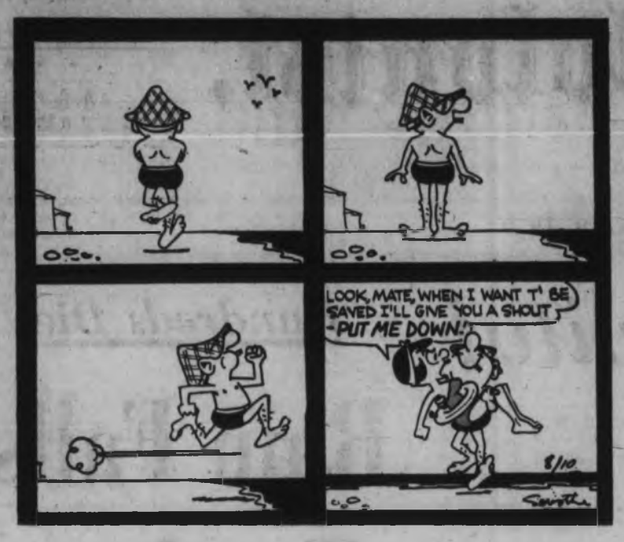

Despite his injuries, Backer tried to lure the lion back into the cage but failed and was attacked again.

Finally he managed to crawl out of the garden and police sharpshooters moved in and killed the animal, the spokesman said.

Backer's condition was described as satisfactory by a hospital spokesman.

Police said they did not know why his application had been turned down but added that authorities "for several years had been trying to get rid of the animal."

No Bigger Hero

THE news item out of Detroit was somewhat matter-of-fact, just a little blase. It said that 8,000 friends of Joe Louis had gathered to pay homage to the Brown Bomber and to set up a trust fund for him.

It might not mean much to those on the bright side of 40, but I can tell you right here and now there was no bigger hero in the whole world than Joseph Louis Barrow back in the Thirties.

Summer streets full of youngsters playing Hoist the Sails, Relievo or Giant Step, became deserted and deathly quiet every time a Joe Louis fight was on the radio.

It was inside, even on the sultriest evenings, to listen to the marvelous word pictures of Bill Corrum and Don Dunphy. It was, for the most part, pure ambrosia as Joe would dispatch yet another opponent. And I recall the sickening silence the night Max Schmeling annihilated Louis in 12 rounds. Dreams shattered like egg shells — a hated Nazi had beaten our hero.

But that was all wiped from the slate a year later when Joe Louis, in probably his best fight ever, devastated the Black Uhlan in one terrifying round.

TODAY, Joe Louis is in a Denver hospital, victim of a mental breakdown. A victim, possibly, of years of frustration with income tax problems not of his own making. He made millions in the ring, has nothing left today.

After his final fight, a seventh-round loss to Rocky Marciano, Louis tried all the gimmicks. He became a wrestler, had to give that up because of a heart murmur. He lent his name and body as a wrestling referee and while it was demeaning for a man of his heroic proportions, it helped pay the bills.

IT WAS during this period of his life that I met Louis in Calgary. He talked about the money he had lost through the sharp practices of promoter Mike Jacobs. Of how he went millions of dollars in debt to Uncle Sam because of purses he donated to army and navy relief funds. Of how the golf course hustlers took him at upwards of $1,000 a hole.

We arranged a golf game that day and were refused permission to play at the Calgary Golf and Country Club because of the color of Joe's skin. The Earl Grey Club had no such prejudice and we played our game there. Good? Joe had never seen the course before, but shot a 71. The hustlers that beat him must have been of Arnold Palmer calibre.

Joe Louis was an easy touch. He came out of the army owing Mike Jacobs $200,000 and most of it went to buddies who needed a ten spot. His early marital flings cost him hundreds of thousands. Bad investments, unscrupulous managers, robbed him of similar fortunes.

Yet outwardly, Joe remained the calm, soft-spoken hero. He refused to hate because of the foul deeds done to him. His speech was hesitant, jumbled, because Joe had little formal schooling, but he made sense and friends.

LOUIS was the first important black athlete after Jack Johnson and as such, had a bit of image making to repair. There never was a greater ambassador for his race, or for sport. He was never guilty of an unsportsmanlike act or of public pecadillo. I remember New York Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia being brought up short by fight announcer Bill Corrum. LaGuardia, in praise of Louis at some function, said, "Joe is a credit to the Negro race." Corrum shot back, "Hell, mayor, he's a credit to the human race."

Anyway, as one of the Joe Louis hero worshippers, I am saddened to see him in such difficulties and I have to say an amen to the little speech made at that gathering the other night in Detroit by a black community organizer, Frank Ditto. He expressed satisfaction that "people would come together to show their respect and concern for Louis, but it should have come a long time ago so that he might have been present today."

What a marvelous athlete he was.

Margin of Safety

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long should one wait to become pregnant again after having a miscarriage (at 10 weeks)? I subsequently had a D and C.

My obstetrician told me he advises all his patients to wait until after having three normal monthly periods.

We recently moved, and our new family doctor says he advises his patients to wait at least six months, and that there is more chance that I will miscarry again if I become pregnant too soon.

I have had two normal pregnances, and this was my first miscarriage. For various reasons I would like to become pregnant again as soon as it is reasonably safe to do so.—J.K.

The best answer I can give is to say that waiting for three normal periods is a minimum. If you can persuade yourself to wait a little longer, it gives an added margin of safety.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 13 and weight 160. Do you have a diet I could follow? I'm desperate. I'm always being called fatty.—Fatso, or Mr. M.L.H.

The usual trouble is eating too much fat, too much starch, and too much sugar. Try eating mostly your meat or fish, vegetables, and fruit. And drink your milk, skimmed or 2 per cent.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I started picking at a mole on my chest. It itches and has become scabby and darker brown. I am scared about cancer. Will it heal up or should I go for a checkup?—C.P.

Don't pick at moles or irritate them. Sometimes it can cause real trouble — infection for one thing, and with continued irritation, sometimes cancer. Have this one checked. Quite likely it will prove to be all right, but when a mole bleeds or shows changes of any kind, it should be examined to find out whether it ought to be removed.

□

Note to Mrs. E.A.L.: Those "unexplained, occasional spells of complete exhaustion" sometimes are episodes of low blood sugar. I offer that not as a diagnosis but as a suggestion worth exploring.

trouble; the premier doesn't want any fanfare during the ceremony, but I think it will be quite an event.

"There will be a reception here at city hall and dignitaries from Victoria and the Mainland will be in attendance," Haddock said.

In accepting the honor, the premier will join the ranks of a chosen few to hold the title of Freeman of the City of Victoria.

The first man to receive the scroll almost 42 years ago, was Viscount Willingdon, former Governor-General of Canada. A year later in 1928, Robert Pim Butchart became a freeman.

Bert Thomas, the man who first swam the Strait of Juan de Fuca, was nominated in 1955, but he never showed up for the ceremony, and there are doubts at city hall as to the award's validity.

In 1959, Frank McKenzie Ross, a former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia became a freeman. He was followed by Archie McKinnon (known to Victorians as Mr. YMCA) in 1963.

In 1964, the honor was bestowed on the Canadian Scottish Regiment, Princess Mary's. Former Lieutenant-Governor George R. Pearkes received the scroll in 1965.

flags. Explosive sounding charges were rigged to mark her final descent, and underwater microphones were deployed.

Six caged white rabbits which rode the Briggs out from Southport, N.C., to detect any gas leaks were found to be in good health. The skipper of the escort destroyer Hartley claimed one as a mascot.

After a little more than two hours, seven seacocks and the main flood valve aboard the Second World War vessel were opened and it began sinking slowly out of sight.

The Hartley planned to remain at the site, which it marked on arrival with a floating smoke bomb, to fix the exact site of the sunken nerve gas rockets encased in steel and concrete and to collect water sample bottles automatically sent to the surface over an eight-hour period.

The navy will return to the site in October to take further water samples. "It's a post-dump survey to try to please the ecologists," said Dr. Conrad Cheek, head of the navy research laboratory's chemical oceanographic division.

In Geneva, U.S. ambassador Christopher H. Phillips assured the United Nations committee on peaceful uses of the seabed that "there is simply no possibility of the toxic material becoming hazardous to human life."

He said all the nerve agents will be destroyed or diluted to the point of harmlessness within no more than 10 days of contact with sea water. The maximum conceivable area that could be affected would be about one cubic mile on the ocean floor.

At the news conference, Peterson appealed to the pulp and paperworkers of Canada to end their strike against about half of the B.C. pulp industry.

Don Lanskail, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, which bargains for pulp industry employers, said the industry is ready to resume negotiations immediately.

The PPWC strike began July 24 and has closed eight mills. The two other unions have threatened to close the remaining mills after the term of mediator Gus Leonidas expires tonight.

President John Billings of Forest Industrial Relations said copies of the report are being circulated to the member companies.

He said most informal reactions reaching him have expressed "extreme disappointment." He added: "The industry is obviously deeply distrubed at the immediate cost impact of the recommendations in the current market."

At a press conference at Kelowna, Premier W. A. C. Bennett congratulated Mr. Justice Nemetz on the report, and recommended its acceptance by both the IWA and the industry.

Meanwhile, picketing of three Vancouver-area contracting shops was continued Tuesday by unemployed members of Local 170 of the plumbers union. No construction jobs were held up, however, as the men employed by the three firms went directly to job sites.

Hospital Vetoed

The Colonist learned that Loffmark reacted enthusiastically to this money-saving proposal and said he wanted to hear more details. On Monday, Aug. 3, Curtis mailed him a map that showed the site and the existing ownerships.

However, on the same day, Loffmark's secretary telephoned Cumming at home and said he wouldn't go along with the idea. The secretary called because the minister was "up north."

There was speculation Tuesday that Loffmark checked with St. Joseph's Hospital and its owner-to-be, the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, and was told that such a deal was impossible.

If the regional board did not buy the St. Ann's Academy grounds, it would have to buy St. Joseph's hospital at possibly more than the $1.6 million it would pay for the academy site.

In the meantime, the regional board is still awaiting an assurance from St. Joseph's Hospital that it can build the 150-bed extended care centre within the $1.9 million guideline set by the provincial government.

"Failing this assurance we cannot possibly justify to the taxpayer the expenditure of $1,587,820 for the (academy) land which we might not require for many years to come, if at all," said a regional board spokesman.

Loffmark could not be reached for comment Tuesday on why he changed his mind about the Saanich site. He is expected to be out of town for the rest of the month visiting hospitals and public health units.

representative for the talks as highly-placed sources in Tel Aviv reported more alleged Egyptian violations of the ceasefire. Israel apparently is determined that its charges of ceasefire breaches should be clarified before the talks begin.

Although officials refused to speak of a crisis in relations with the United States, Israeli newspapers openly talked of a crisis of confidence between Jerusalem and Washington.

Highly placed sources in Jerusalem said Egyptian forces had been reinforced by movement of both troops and equipment into the area in another violation of the ceasefire.

Arab governments have also accused Israel of breaking the ceasefire. The Lebanese government said Israeli forces crossed into southern Lebanon early Tuesday and blew up three houses. A Tel Aviv spokesman merely said: "We are continuing our usual activity to assure the security of the Israel-Lebanese border."

Senate Hearing

Marijuana Objection Nearly Fatal

From UPI, Reuters

WASHINGTON — An ex-marine sergeant told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday that his objections to marijuana smoking so infuriated men under his command in Vietnam that one tried to murder him with a hand grenade.

"I was blown up by my own men who rolled a grenade under my bunk as I slept," testified Robert Parkinson at a juvenile delinquency subcommittee's hearing on drug abuse.

Earlier, an ex-soldier, John Steinberg of Philadelphia testified that marijuana smoking had reached epidemic proportions among U.S. troops in Vietnam but that the American command "steadfastly refuses" to face the problem.

Parkinson, now living in Sunland, Calif., told how he had survived 20 months of combat in Vietnam without seeing any troops use drugs. But when he returned at his own request in August, 1968, he said marijuana was "everywhere you looked."

Senator Thomas Dodd said Tuesday the use of drugs has become prevalent wherever American troops are stationed and has even been found in the living quarters of Strategic Air Command pilots.

In reopening congressional hearings on the use of marijuana among U.S. military men, the Connecticut Democrat raised the spectre of pilots flying U.S. nuclear-armed B-52 bombers while under the influence of drugs.

Security precautions were tightened around female Red Cross workers at Cu Chi army base in Vietnam Tuesday. Military authorities went ahead with plans for an autopsy on the body of stabbing victim Virginia Kirsch.

Miss Kirsch, 21, of Brookfield, Ohio, was found stabbed to death in the Red Cross girls quarters on base Sunday.

Miss Kirsch, a 1970 graduate of Miami University, had been in Vietnam only two weeks at the time of her death, and was assigned to Cu Chi, about 25 miles from Saigon, the week before.

Allied troops reported in Saigon Tuesday they killed 72 communist soldiers in action near two embattled bases along the Laotian frontier. South Vietnamese infantrymen intercepted a thrust apparently aimed at an American paratroop position.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam one American was killed and 31 wounded in three shelling attacks against U.S. units or bases, and soldiers of the 5th Mechanized Division killed 13 communists in two clashes in the Ba Long valley of northern Quang Tri province.

In Washington, sponsors of the "amendment to end the war" charged Vice-President Spiro Agnew Tuesday with waging a dangerous, unprecedented and subversive attack on the Senate.

Rebel Songs, Booze Aboard Minsweeper

'Mutiny' and Coffee

ROSYTH FIFE, Scotland (UPI) —Accounts of drinking, songs of rebellion and mockery aboard a British minesweeper spiced the opening round of testimony Tuesday at the Royal Navy's first mutiny court-martial in 16 years.

Witnesses said the short-lived July 6 uprising finally was put down by a police sergeant called onto the ship from ashore.

The five enlisted defendants pleaded innocent to mutiny charges stemming from the incident aboard the HMS Iveston after it berthed at Ullapool.

Cmdr. Angus Falconer, the prosecutor, singled out Seaman Edward Griffiths, 25, as the ringleader of a rebellious group of five that returned to the Iveston from shore and began a protest against the ship's routine and against its First Lieutenant, Ian Ridley.

"I would say that he had been drinking," ships' captain Lt. Stephen Johnston, said of Griffiths.

Falconer told the court the sailors belted out Irish rebel songs and enacted a mock scene from Mutiny on the Bounty before marching on the officers' wardroom.

There was a pause for coffee before four of the five of the alleged mutineers were arrested and taken ashore, the court was told.

"Do you say that this mutiny was all ended after a few minutes by a civilian police sergeant?" one of the defence attorneys asked Johnston.

"Well, yes," Johnston said.

"Didn't it strike you as odd that in a mutiny taking place in one of her majesty's ships there was a break in the mutiny for coffee to be taken?" the lawyer said.

"No, the pantry was just there," Johnston answered.

Iraq vs. Jordan

From AP, UP, Reuters

Iraq told Jordan Tuesday that 12,000 Iraqi troops stationed in Jordan will back Arab Palestinian guerrillas in any new showdown with the Jordanian army.

The warning came a day after Arab guerrillas claimed that King Hussein was massing troops and armor outside Amman in preparation for a crackdown against commandos.

"Iraqi troops on the eastern front — Syria and Jordan — have already been placed at the disposal of the Palestinian resistance movement in Amman," an Iraqi government spokesman said.

Official sources in Washington said Tuesday the United States has found no evidence to support Israel's charge that Egypt has moved anti-aircraft missiles closer to the Suez Canal immediately after the current Middle East ceasefire went into effect 10 days ago.

In Jerusalem, mystery surrounded the whereabouts Tuesday of two detained Algerian passengers of a British airliner after the Israeli Supreme Court overruled a bid to keep them in custody.

Informed sources said Monday that Maj. Khatib Djellou, reported to be secretary-general at the Algerian presidency, and Ali Belziz, a businessman, were expected to be freed within a couple of days.

★ ★ ★

In Cairo, represenatives of owners of 15 ships trapped in the Suez Canal since June, 1967, have renewed discussions with Egyptian authorities on prospects of freeing the vessels following the ceasefire along the waterway, it was learned Tuesday.

Harmony at Home Biggest Problem

BEIRUT (UPI)—Political observers said Tuesday that president-elect Suleiman Franjieh's most difficult problem will be attempting to maintain harmony between the Lebanese government and Arab guerrillas.

Franjieh announced his support for the Palestinian cause, but he said Arab guerrilla attacks against Israel from Lebanese territory endangers the country's safety and security, which he has vowed to maintain.

A Lebanese military spokesman reported that Israeli ground troops Tuesday attacked areas in southern Lebanon where guerrillas operate.

Nader Loses, Smokers Win

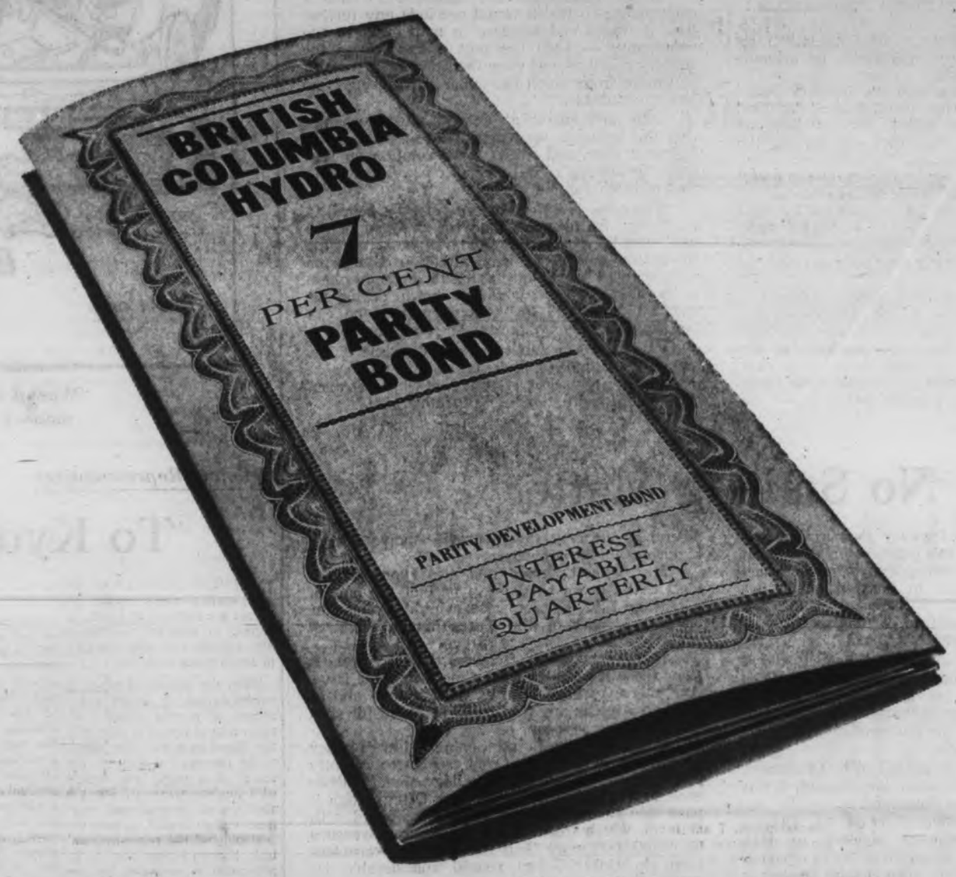

WASHINGTON (AP) —Ralph Nader has lost a suit to compel the Federal Aviation Administration to ban smoking on airline flights.

United States Judge Joseph Waddy ruled late Monday that the emergency powers of the FAA administrator, which Nader had contended should be used to ban smoking, are discretionary powers.

"It is not for this court to substitute its judgment for the judgment of the administrator," Waddy said in rejecting the Nader suit.

In March the FAA issued an advance notice of proposed rule-making, asking the public to comment as to whether smoking should be further restricted aboard passenger-carrying aircraft.

Currently the FAA prohibits smoking on passenger flights only at takeoff and landing.

Crisis Must Be Faced

REPRESENTATIVES of the postal unions and of the treasury board say they are prepared to continue to negotiate indefinitely until a final settlement on wages and job security is hammered out in Ottawa.

It is to be assumed, therefore, that both sides are shrugging their shoulders at the plight of the public. And this indifference has reached a point where it becomes intolerable. Taxpayers have every reason to expect public servants to live up to their responsibilities and elected representatives to protect their interests.

There is little evidence to show that either side at the bargaining table appreciates or acknowledges these public rights.

If the postal unions and the treasury board are prepared to accept continuing "rotating" strikes, as they are called, for as long as negotiations continue, then they are defying the public's wishes.

The public wants fair treatment for the postal unions but in return the public wants some sort of assurance that it is not to be plagued by mail stoppages every time there is a disagreement between the post office (represented by the treasury board at the bargaining sessions) and the unions.

The public would feel more inclined to patience with the unions if they abandoned the blackmail policy, as represented by the rotating, nuisance strikes, and far more confident in the effectiveness of the government agency if it took the stand that until such a decision were made there would be no more negotiations.

Since the two sides are only three cents an hour apart on the wage issue the prospects of a settlement should be within reach of reasonable men. Why, then, prolong the public agony?

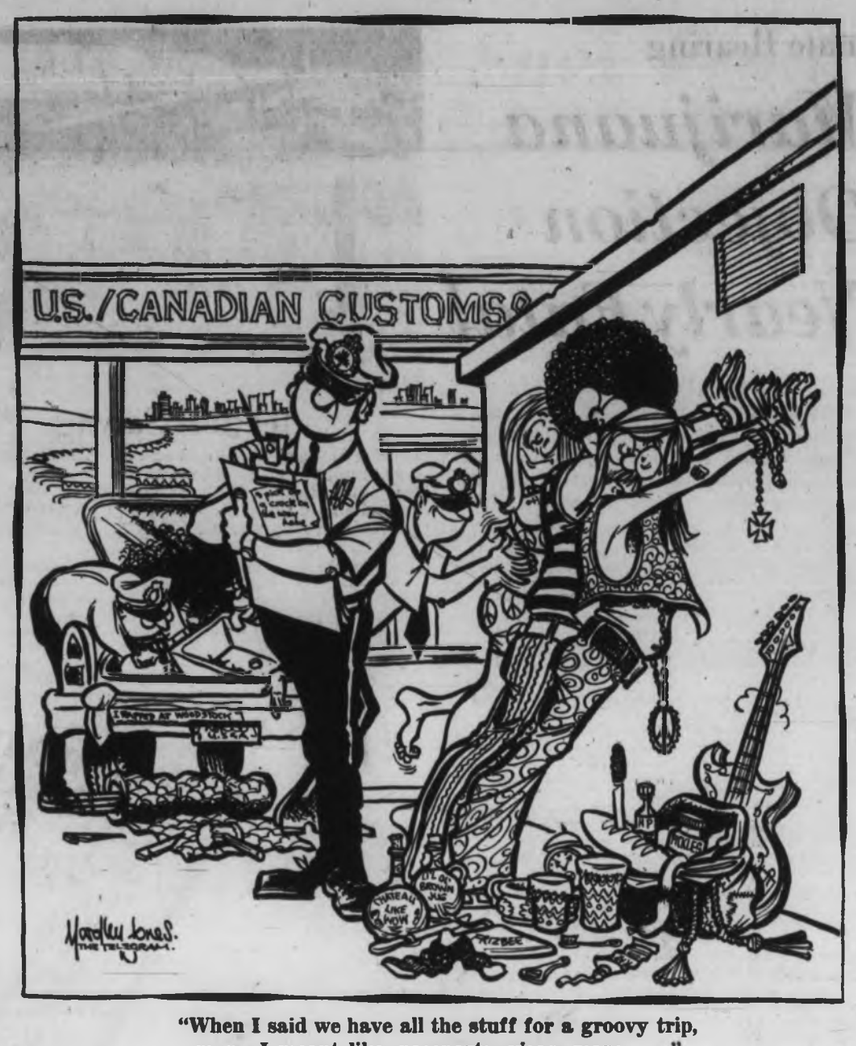

If the unions should go back in anticipation of a settlement it should be guaranteed that there would be no slowdowns or other clever tricks by which it is possible to undermine an essential service without actually striking it.

If the unions are not agreeable to such a compromise — which would preclude any further loss of wages and increase in mail costs to the community — then the post offices across the country might as well close their doors. The sort of stalemate from which the public is suffering is no longer endurable.

The government at Ottawa must recognize that the situation has reached the shape of crisis. Unless it does, and works for a solution on that basis, the charge of incompetence can be added to that of indifference.

Since the president of the treasury board, C. M. Drury, has demonstrated the problem of the mail mess is beyond his capacity, perhaps it is time the matter got the personal attention of a prime minister who is currently scuba diving somewhere in the Caribbean but who has shown, during his recent tour of the north country, that he can tackle our problems while standing on his head.

The Canadian public is entitled to see if Mr. Trudeau is as much a diplomat as he is an acrobat and whether he meant what he said when he called the post office situation "close to intolerable."

"When I said we have all the stuff for a groovy trip, man—I meant like, passports, visas, maps . . ."

No Smiling Matter

ALMOST ALWAYS Premier Bennett presents a happy face to the public no matter what stresses and strains are being brought to bear upon him or his government. In fact, his smile has become something of a personal trademark especially beloved by political cartoonists throughout the length and breadth of Canada.

However, last Saturday Mr. Bennett didn't smile. Instead, he completely abandoned his role as the nation's number one good humor man to become an angry provincial leader ready and more than willing to identify the source of his annoyance as the federal government.

Canada, he stated, is being run by Quebecers. "We haven't got a Canadian government, it's a Quebec government," he thundered.

To back up his opinion he said that Ottawa only gives token financial support to B.C. highways while giving money from B.C. taxpayers to the Quebec government even though Quebec is almost as rich in resources as British Columbia.

And, he added, Ottawa is being run by three men — "all Quebecers." They are, he said, Prime Minister Trudeau, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand.

Triggering Mr. Bennett's remarks was a statement by Alberta Highways Minister Gordon Taylor who said during the Yellowhead Highway opening ceremonies over the weekend that the federal government should provide money for all highways linking provinces.

Mr. Bennett agreed and also expressed the view that Ottawa should pay part of the cost of operating B.C. Ferries, a provincial system he claimed is part of the Trans-Canada Highway route.

It was inevitable, of course, that Mr. Bennett should lose his cool at some time over some issue. And this may have been as good a time and as good an issue as any that could be found for such an auspicious occasion.

He is not alone in questioning Ottawa's policy of pouring money into Quebec. Figures recently published in Ontario revealing that Quebec receives $1,000,000,000 more from Ottawa than it pays into the federal treasury as compared with Ontario which paid into the federal treasury $1,400,000,000 more than the federal government spent in Ontario, has roused considerable ire among that province's taxpayers.

Though similar up-to-date figures (for 1968-69) are not available for British Columbia yet, it is known that in the fiscal period 1967-68 this province paid more than $500,000,000 in income taxes into the federal coffers and received federal aid and grants of only $159,000,000 in return.

With this sort of set Ottawa policy in force perhaps it is understandable why Premier Bennett, who is also B.C.'s finance minister, finds it a little difficult to smile all the time.

Mideast Peace on Soviet Terms

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

ATTEMPTS at solving the Middle East conflict and the German problem through negotiations are not new.

Made repeatedly by the West over the past two decades, they all floundered on the Soviet "nyet". What, then, accounts for Moscow's willingness to talk now?

No two Kremlinologists I know of agree on the answer. Some ascribe Russia's readiness to parley entirely to the Sino-Soviet rift.

The possibility of an armed clash with Mao's China, they say, is forcing Soviet strategists to secure their Western flank and ease tensions in the Middle East whether they like it or not.

Others think that Russia may have extended itself militarily beyond the capacity of Soviet economy to sustain the momentum of the thrusts and that the Kremlin needs a period of relative calm on the international scene to consolidate the gains.

Some students of Soviet foreign policy maintain that Moscow is anxious to preserve the shaky Brandt-Scheel coalition in Bonn in power and to help the Soviet-supported regimes in the key Arab states bring the Maoist-oriented Arab guerrilla movements under control.

There may be a grain of truth in all these theories, although the alleged Soviet fear of conflict with China could be exaggerated. The men in the Kremlin know that even if their quarrel with Peking was to deteriorate into open large-scale warfare, they have nothing to fear from the West. They know that NATO, which sat tight during the upheavals in Hungary and Czechoslovakia, would not attack, and that West Germany could not cause trouble even if it wanted to.

So what does account for the Soviet nod to negotiations of hitherto non-negotiable issues?

I think the answer that might be nearest to the truth is that Moscow judges the political and psychological climate in the West ripe for a major diplomatic manoeuvre that would advance the Soviet long-term plan for world hegemony beyond Stalin's and Khrushchev's dreams, while decreasing the risk of a nuclear clash with the United States.

To come closer to its ultimate goal, the Kremlin must remove NATO from its path in Europe and gain complete control of the Middle East — which has not only the reserves of oil the U.S.S.R. will soon need, but provides the strategically vital link between the Black Sea, the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean.

Stalin and Khrushchev tried to get rid of NATO by threats. The pressure tactic, concentrated on West Berlin and West Germany, not only did not work but every one of the Soviet-manufactured brink-of-war crises in those areas actually tended to revitalize the Atlantic Alliance.

Seeing the futility of that approach, which was pursued intermittently until the early 1960s, Khrushchev tried the Cuban missile shortcut to frighten and blackmail the United States, core of the alliance, into impotence. When that failed, the slow method of political disruption of NATO through psychological warfare was substituted for missile-rattling. It was patiently pursued throughout the 1960s.

The first success of the "peaceful co-existence" stratagem came when France withdrew from NATO's unified command and de Gaulle started chasing the dream of French-led Europe "from the Atlantic to the Urals."

Then, under Trudeau's insistence, Canada cut her contribution to collective Western defence.

At the same time, isolationist pressures in the U.S. started gaining ground. In Germany, the premise of eventual reunification of the country through Bonn's firm alliance with the West lost credence. Simultaneously, the prospect of the beginning of American withdrawal from Europe by mid-1971 helped Brandt launch his policy of "normalization" of relations with the Soviet bloc as an alternative approach to the attainment of basic German national aspirations.

By now, the combination of all these factors has created such a crisis of confidence within NATO that a "negotiated" demise of the Alliance is a distinct possibility.

The Kremlin certainly has nothing to lose from giving it a try. The confusion and demoralization of the electorates in the Western democracies has progressed far enough to be extremely helpful in the manoeuvre which is now backed by Soviet nuclear parity with U.S. and by a rapidly-growing Russian naval power.

In the Middle East, through skilful exploitation of the Arab hatred of Israel, the Soviet Union now has almost entirely eliminated Western influence.

There are Soviet rockets on the Suez Canal; in Libya the Russians virtually took over air and naval bases from the British and the Americans; and a string of recently-acquired Soviet naval bases stretches from Egypt via Yemen and the Gulf of Aden along the east coast of Africa as far south as the former British island of Mauritius near the Tropic of Capricorn.

A clash with the U.S. over Israel could jeopardize all these precious acquisitions whose full strategic worth will come into play with the reopening of the Suez Canal.

To risk destruction of these patiently acquired commanding positions whose new management cannot be dislodged by any negotiations would certainly be stupid.

Hence the Kremlin's willingness to talk "peace" on Soviet terms.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Canadians paid a heavy toll 28 years ago today — in 1942 — when units of the 2nd Division raided the French town of Dieppe during the Second World War. Of the nearly 5,000 men who crossed the English Channel, 3,369 were killed, wounded or captured. The main body of attackers was stalled on the beaches and only a handful of troops managed to break into the town. Despite the great loss, the attack was regarded by many military strategists as a valuable lesson for later seaborne landings.

1871 — Pioneer aviator Orville Wright was born.

Religious Representatives

To Kyoto in Search of Peace

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE

REPRESENTATIVES of the world's major living religions are meeting at Kyoto, in Japan, in October to discuss how religion can help mankind to attain peace on earth.

When the pursuit of peace is whole-hearted, it covers every aspect of human affairs. We think first of trying to cope with the threat to peace that seems to be the most imminent: the threat of a world war fought with nuclear weapons. But the abolition of international warfare, though urgent, is only the beginning of the peace-makers' task. Human beings have to be persuaded to renounce the use of violence in all their relations with each other. We have to refrain from insurrections and from the repression of insurrections by force of arms; we have to refrain from the non-physical misuse of power, by sabotage or by wire-pulling, for violating the rights that are common to our fellow human beings and to ourselves.

Nor is peace in social relations enough, even when social peace is interpreted in the most comprehensive sense. Human beings cannot be at peace with each other unless each of them is at peace with himself. The source of peace — and of war — is the interior life of each individual human spirit. The destiny of mankind depends on the struggle, within each of us, to overcome his own self-centredness; and in each of us, as we know from experience, this struggle is life-long.

The city of Kyoto is a happy choice for the meeting-place of a world conference on religion and peace. Kyoto, which was officially Japan's capital city for more than 1,000 years, is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, and the autumn is Kyoto's loveliest season. The site of Kyoto is a vast square bounded on three sides by forest-clad mountains. Buddhist monasteries nestle at the foot of the mountains and crown the heights at their northeastern corner. Gardens, forests, and buildings make a visual symphony that is a symbol of peace and a promise that peace may be achieved.

A promise: this gives hope; and we need hope to inspire us with the faith and courage to translate the promise into accomplished fact. If you are acquainted with Kyoto's history, you will be aware that this apparent "abode of felicity" (the traditional Turkish name for another beautiful city, Istanbul) has actually been an atrocious battlefield. War has devastated Kyoto more than once; and some of the fiercest of the belligerents have been embattled monks.

Monks of all religions have dedicated themselves to peace, and Buddhism is, intrinsically, a more pacific religion than Christianity. Yet Kyoto is a place in which Buddhist monks have at times acted out of keeping with their calling. For a conference on religion and peace, this is a timely reminder of the arduousness of the task.

The most significant feature of the conference at Kyoto in 1970 is that it will be a meeting between the two main living schools of religion — schools that originated at opposite ends of the old world, and that, between them, now command the nominal allegiance of the great majority of mankind. The allegiance is only nominal; for the real religion of the majority, for at least the last 5,000 years, has been the worship, in some form, of collective human power. This, too is a religion, but it is an evil one. Its prevalence is a challenge to all the higher religions that will be represented at Kyoto this year.

The two main schools of religion that have risen above man's worship of himself have much to learn from each other. The virtue of Indian and East Asian religion is its generous-minded charity toward religions that have different practices, precepts and doctrines. At the east end of the old world, religious persecution has been as rare as it was at the west end before the rise there of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. The rather mild persecution of Buddhist monks and nuns by a Confucian-minded "establishment" in ninth-century China is an exception that proves the rule. Buddhist missionaries, unlike Christian and Muslim missionaries, have not sought to eradicate the previous religions of the lands that they have evangelized. Above all, they have abstained from suppressing them by force — as, for instance, the pre-Christian religions of the Roman Empire were suppressed toward the close of the fourth century by a Christian Roman government. Buddhism and Shinto co-exist peacefully in Japan, and Vishnuism and Shivaism in India. In the West, too, this spirit of mutual tolerance was the rule before the advent there of Christianity and Islam. Eastern Asia and India still hold a brief for a precious virtue of the West's lost pre-Christian past.

In Japan, the indigenous religion, Shinto, was partly distorted into state-worship between 1868 and 1945, but it is really a worship of non-human nature — man's oldest object of veneration. Nature came to be despised by man when he got the better of her; his own power then came to seem to him to be more divine. Today we are suddenly awakening to the truth that nature is divine after all, and that our impious obliteration and pollution of nature is threatening to liquidate our own race. We are a part of nature, so that it is only natural that we cannot, with impunity, do violence to the natural environment in which human nature has come into existence.

It is fortunate that nature-worship has survived in Japan longer than anywhere else; for Japan has gone farther than any other country in effacing nature. The Japanese have been burying nature under streets and factories and blocks of apartment-houses. They have been gashing her to blast passages for motorways and high-speed railways. Can Shinto succeed in saving Japan from the devastating effects of triumphant technology? If it can, this venerable religion will be doing a service for the whole world.

Religion reaches out in two directions. It seeks for union with the ultimate spiritual reality behind and beyond the universe, but it also seeks for peace among human beings. Whatever our picture of ultimate reality may be, we cannot conceive of it as being indifferent to man. We, on our side, cannot be indifferent to ultimate reality, and the feeling of concern must surely be reciprocal. Religions of both the main schools agree in believing that ultimate reality does concern itself with human affairs. This conviction is expressed in the Hindu belief in the repeated incarnations of the god Vishnu, and also in the Christian belief in the unique incarnation of the god Yahweh in Jesus.

Jews and Muslims, who do not believe that God himself ever has become, or ever will become, incarnate, do believe that he has commissioned a series of human beings to be his prophets. Buddhism sees ultimate reality as a supra-personal state of being, Nirvana, and holds that a human being can attain Nirvana only by the self-extinction of the self. But the northern school of Buddhism believes that some human beings who have reached the threshold of Nirvana have voluntarily postponed, for aeons, the self-extinction that has been within their power. These potential Buddhas have sacrificed themselves by retaining their self-hood — and with it their exposure to suffering — for the sake of helping their fellow sentient beings to achieve the extinction of self that the bodhisattva has denied to himself.

This conception of the ultimate reality as being so deeply concerned with our welfare that it subjects itself to suffering on our behalf is common to northern Buddhism and Christianity. Perhaps it is here that the Western religions may have something to give to the Eastern religions in this meeting, for helping religions to serve the cause of peace, that is to be held in the autumn of 1970 at Kyoto.

Mexico Closes Door

By ALFONSO CASTRO from Mexico City

PUBLIC sentiment in Mexico is turning against Latin American political refugees, particularly those whose entry was arranged to save the lives of terrorist kidnapping victims.

The Mexican government already has informed other Latin countries that Mexico will no longer admit such so-called political prisoners.

That was why 40 Brazilian terrorists went to Algeria. They were released from prison in exchange for the life of the West German ambassador kidnapped in Brazil in June.

And that is why the 10 Bolivian terrorists flown to Chile July 22 were denied visas to come to Mexico. The 10 were given their freedom in exchange for the lives of two West German mining engineers kidnapped by a new Bolivian guerrilla band.

★ ★ ★

Before official and unofficial feeling turned against the terrorists, Mexico had opened its doors to the 15 Brazilians turned loose last September as ransom for U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick. Mexico had taken in the Guatemalan guerrillas who were bartered for the life of the then Guatemalan foreign minister. And Mexico received the 20 Dominican activists who were released to save the life of the U.S. air attache to the embassy in Santo Domingo in March.

All were allowed into Mexico in accord with this country's traditional observance of the right of political asylum.

But even before the general assembly of the Organization of American States met in Washington in June and agreed on a ringing condemnation of terrorism, political kidnapping, sabotage and the other unorthodox revolutionary techniques being used in the Americas these days, Mexico decided to call a halt to the flow here of Latin activists.

So it was that when Brazil asked Mexico to accept the terrorists ransomed in exchange for the life of West German Ambassador Ehrenfried von Holleben, the Mexican foreign ministry demurred. The 40 terrorists, instead, were sent to Algiers. From there they have made their way to France.

But what really turned Mexicans against terrorists from other countries was the skyjacking July 25 of a Mexican commercial airliner by three Dominican refugees who forced the pilot to fly to Havana.

The three were part of the group released from Dominican jails to save the life of the U.S. attache two months before. Protest was widespread. The newspaper Novedades said that the incident demonstrated the urgency of distinguishing "between authentic political refugees and vulgar delinquents" when the right of asylum is granted.

El Sol said that the aerial hijacking, the fifth of a Mexican airliner to Cuba, shows that "what was the noble and humanitarian institution (of political asylum) has become an instrument of subversion, in the hands of terrorists and ruffians."

'Future Shock' Latest Malady

BY EDWARD NEILAN from Washington

The latest malady to strike modern civilization is called "future shock."

It is a reaction of frustration, anxiety and inability to cope on the part of urban dwellers.

The cause is the onrush of new ideas and technology, the population explosion, general disenchantment with the old, and high-speed life in general.

New York author Alan Toffler coined the term "future shock" and eventually it may, experts predict, become a household phrase.

★ ★ ★

"Future shock may turn out to be the most devastating urban disease of tomorrow," says Toffler, "and millions of New Yorkers are first in line, as usual. The challenge is: how to control change."

The population explosion, the mere fact of making room for millions of new people, is one of the things that contributes to future shock.

Toffler wrote recently, "To accommodate the new urban millions we would have to build a duplicate city ofr each of the hundreds that already dot the globe. A new Tokyo, New York, London, Rome and Rangoon — all in 11 years."

Values are being changed by technology. From birth onward children are growing up in a "throwaway culture." Science is discovering that physical objects are cheaper to throw away than to repair. Such object — cars as well as paper cups — pass in and out of an individual's life at a rapid pace.

Adjustment time to new ideas, new products, new faces is being shortened.

The lead time between introduction and peak production of the refrigerator was 34 years, for the electric frying pan eight years, for the transistor radio even shorter.

Future shock is not listed in any of the medical dictionaries. It is still too new, like a rare variety of measles that has not been fully diagnosed.

While the ailment is new, its symptoms have been noted before in jet-aged society.

Anthropologists are aware that travellers who find themselves suddenly plunked down in an alien culture often break out in a rash of physical and psychological problems.

"Culture shock," of which future shock is a related disease, is already a widely discussed phenomenon. In culture shock, the individual suddenly finds himself in an environment in which things no longer make sense. It is a situation where the rules of the life game are all switched, turned upside down.

The impact of this sudden change leaves the person bewildered, anxious or apathetic.

The individual's familair frame of reference is shattered and the old rules do not apply.

Psychologist Sven Lundstedt says the disoreinted person suffering from cultural shock begins to long desperately for "an environment in which the gratification of important psychological and physical needs is predictable."

The future is arriving so swiftly for urban dwellers that, for all practical purposes, we are superimposing a new, alien culture — aesthetics, politics, sexual roles — on top of the old one.

"The accelerative thrust" — Toffler's term for the increasingly fastpaced tempo of modern city life — has always been different in the city than in the country. But the "speed gap" is changing.

Very soon going from the countryside to a big city will be even more like going to a foreign country than it is today. Television and the printed word have given the nation a common denominator but the pace of living in different areas is tugging in the other direction on the ropes of sameness.

Can the Whale Be Saved?

BY PETER PRIEST from London

The largest mammal on earth, after many centuries of hunting, is suffering from what Herman Melville in his classic novel, Moby Dick, described as "so wide a chase and so remorseless a havoc."

Since 1900, 2,000,000 whales have been slaughtered and driven from area to area — they rarely return. Forty years ago the annual catch of blue whales, the largest, was 30,000 but today barely 1,000 are estimated to remain.

The worst offenders against the whale at the present are Russia and Japan. Since the last war they have built new whaling fleets at great cost and wish to see them pay. Therefore, they are the most aggressive in keeping up the quotas of permissible catches set by the International Whaling Commission.

For the next year the catch limits are stiffer for the North Pacific being 3,550 sperm whales (10 per cent down), 1,308 fin whales (10 per cent down) and 4,710 sei whales (15 per cent down). However, the quota for the Antarctic remains the same at 2,700 units and is a big disappointment.

A unit is one blue whale or two fin whales or six sei whales.

The International Whaling Commission met in London this year. It was the 22nd meeting in 18 years and received delegates from 15 countries.

★ ★ ★

The commission was formed for "the foundation, development and optimum utilization of the whale resources." Its purpose is to agree the quotas of maximum catches during a certain season. It employs inspectors to observe and enforce the rules but these are in fact seldom endorced, for the commission's effective power is weak.

It is hunted for a number of reasons. The whalebone, light, flexible and tough, is used for dressmaking and for brushes. In the 17th Century it cost £700 per ton and in the 19th Century it sank to £25 per ton but recently, due to the scarcity of whales, it has been known to sell for over £2,000 per ton.

Whalemeat is eaten extensively in Japan and from a 50-foot whale about 2½ tons is often obtained. It is also used as a part of cattle and chicken food.

The main purpose of the ferocious hunting of whales, however, is to secure the valuable oil. The blubber, which covers the carcase, is a tough fibrous tissue enclosing an enormous amount of this and a 70-ton whale yields about 30 tons of blubber.

Most whale oil is turned into margarine. Sperm oil is used in the lubrication of spindles and other light machinery. It is particularly valued because of its freedom from gumming.

Best quality oil is used in the manufacture of soap and burning oil, and in leather dressing. Ambergris, a wax-like substance from the sperm whale is used as a fixative for perfumes.

The dangerous craft of whaling has a long history. It was carried out in the Ninth Century by the Norsemen. The Basques had an important industry by the 13th Century.

At first it was purely shoreline hunting but shortage eventually forced the Basque whalers to seek whales as far away as Newfoundland.

Spitsbergen was an important whaling centre in the 17th Century. The English were there first and had a keen contest against the Dutch. A whaler of this time was of 200 tons with a crew of 55 men and with five pinnaces with 48 oars to chase the whales.

By the 18th Century whaling had spread along the northern ice between Greenland and Spitsbergen and Greenland and Canada, with over 300 ships active.

Hull, Liverpool, Whitby, Leith, Dunbar and Dundee men took part, seeking oil for lighting and soap, and in the late 19th Century—whale bone corsets.

By the middle of the 19th Century, however, this phase of whaling had begun to wane due to scarcity of whales and the use of a substitute, coal gas, for lighting. The last Dundee whaler came home in 1913.

Meanwhile Britons took an active part in whaling in the Pacific and Indian oceans. They were first there but most of the ships taking part were American.

Sailing in an ocean whaleship away from home for up to three years must have been a dreadful life. U.S. whaling reached its peak in 1846 when there were 729 whaleships at sea, it then declined for reasons including the discovery of petroleum in Pennsylvania in 1859.

Modern whaling was initiated 100 years ago by Svend Foyn, a Norwegian captain, who developed the use of harpoons fired from a cannon as a means of catching those whales which swim too fast for open boats to pursue them.

But, today, whaling is fast running out of time. During the 1950's, Britain and Holland struggled on but whaling became uneconomic for them and they bowed out.

Last year for the first time in 50 years the Norwegians, who have been great hunters, did not sail to the Antarctic. Only Japan and Russia now have fleets there.

Hungary Holy Crown Still U.S. War Booty

BY ROBERT C. TOTH from Washington

This week Hungary celebrates the millenium of the birth of its first king, St. Stephen, and for the occasion it wanted the United States to give back his holy crown. But the United States still refuses to part with that mystical bit of war booty.

It promptly returned the king's mummified right fist which, along with the crown and other coronation regalia, "came into U.S. custody toward the end of the Second World War," the state department said.

It also gave back over $10 million in gold bullion, according to diplomatic sources. The gold reportedly was part of the shipment smuggled out of Budapest by Hungarians and either surrendered to, or intercepted by, the U.S. army in Austria near the Swiss border.

The United States is clearly embarrassed at still having the crown. The state department refuses to say precisely how it got it, where it is now, who's in charge of it, and what it intends to do with it. Everyone supposes the relics are at Fort Knox but no one admits seeing them for 25 years.

All this is rather fitting. "Of all royal crowns, none is more renowned than the Holy Crown of St. Stephen," wrote Lord Twining in his History of the Crown Jewels of Europe, "and none has a like history of falling into the oddest hands and disappearing."

At various times in the past, the Hungarian crown has been hidden in the cushion of a lady-in-waiting, disguised as a baby's bowl by a queen, buried in a swamp by revolutionary patriots, and seized briefly by communist chieftains.

Its most distinctive feature is a tilted cross on top, probably bent in all the handling. As royal jewelry goes, it's not much—a low-fitting golden band studded with rough-cut stones and enamel inlays, with nine pendant chains hanging down. Four golden braces rise to the peak where the small cross stands.

The value of the crown is in its role, which is unique among royal crowns in Europe. It embodies authority over all. When monarchs still ruled Hungary, pretenders found it better to have the crown than dynastic birth. Later, all constitutional powers flowed from it. Court verdicts up to the communist take-over were rendered "in the name of the holy crown."

Its religious significance comes from the belief that Pope Sylvester II sent it to Stephen for his coronation in 1000 A.D. Some of the crown dates from that period, but art experts say it was considerably altered during medieval times.

If the United States has found it awkward to keep the relic, it has found it impossible to return it.

"The crown is the property of the Hungarian nation and a Hungarian national treasure," the state department readily admits, and it is only in U.S. "trust and safekeeping" because "unsettled conditons in Hungary and in Hungarian-American relations," since the war have made its return "inappropriate and inopportune."

Among the "many delicate aspects" involved in its ultimate return, adds the department cautiously, are the crown's symbolic and constitutional significance as well as "the political and emotional sensibilities" of Hungarian emigres and Hungarian-Americans.

These "sensibilities" erupted in April after a brief news story suggested the United States might return the crown for the millenial. Groups like the Hungarian Freedom Fighters' Federation generated scores of protesting letters to congressmen and the state department, and began an international petition to President Nixon which, when shorn of almost hysterical language, claims the crown's return would legitimize the communist regime in Budapest.

That regime has asked for the crown in recent years as relations improved and long-standing bilateral problems have moved toward settlement.

"We have no present plans for the return of the crown," the state department declared recently, but "the subject will continue to be a matter of interest to both governments. Any such eventual action," it concluded, should promote good will and coincide with "some further substantial improvement in the atmosphere and course of our relations with Hungary."

Such improvement would be settlement of the U.S. war damage and nationalization claims totalling almost $60 million. The crown is not hostage to those claims, officials insist, but there is an obvious connection. It is not a simple one, however, since the Hungarians want "most favored nation" trading status to earn dollars to pay off any settlement.

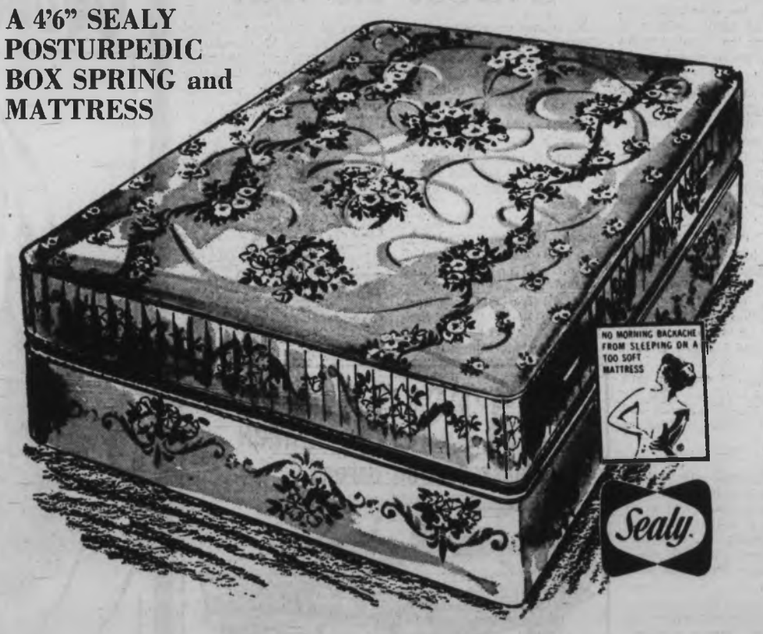

In the end, ironically, the return of this priceless wartime legacy may hinge on how much of a tariff cut will be allowed on such things as Magyar salami and Hungarian bull's blood wine.

Charge Read Then Remand

A joint three-count charge, in which one count alleges a $1 million fraud, was read to two Saanich businessmen during a brief appearance Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Walter Frank Large, 4230 Glendenning, and his brother Earl Wilbert Large, 882 Beckwith, both former directors of the Victoria-based B.C. public company Datatech Systems Ltd., were remanded to Sept. 9 for election of trial method and possibly for plea.

Vancouver lawyer Ray Paris appeared for the prosecution and Victoria lawyer John Goult was defence counsel. Bail was not involved since the charges had been dealt with by summons.

The first count charged that a false prospectus was issued concerning the Datatech firm March 1, 1969, in Victoria and "other places in B.C."

The second count charged the Larges with "defrauding Gairdner and Co. Ltd. of $1 million by fraudulently omitting to disclose certain material facts with respect to the use of the said $1 million which was obtained from the said Gairdner and Co. Ltd. in respect to an agreement for the purchase by Gairdner and Co. Ltd. of 200,000 shares of Datatech."

This count mentioned the dates Sept. 1, 1968, to Feb. 1, 1969, at Victoria and "other places in B.C."

The third count charged the theft of a sum of more than $50 belonging to Datatech "on or about Jan. 30, 1969."

Poorbox Rifled At Charity Store

A robbery at a religious organization's store and the theft of three rings insured for a total of $1,000 were reported Tuesday by Victoria police.

Police said that thieves who broke into the St. Vincent de Paul store at 560 Johnson overnight Monday pried a poorbox from a counter and took the $15 in coins inside.

The robbers also took a camera, some tiepins and ransacked some showcases and the manager's office. Money in a large floor safe in the store was not touched.

Another police report said the three rings vanished overnight Monday from the residence of a woman at 1571 Bay.

Public Must Be Considered

Judge William Ostler expressed sympathy Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court for a 24-year-old Saanich man but, because of "very sinister overtones to this case," he sentenced the man to three months in jail.

Richard Walter Cool, 611 Dupplin, pleaded guilty Aug. 10 to a charge of common assault on a 16-year-old girl. Court was told then he followed the girl late Aug. 6 and, at Tolmie and Oak, and attempted to choke her.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said a psychiatrist was prepared to give Cool extensive treatment and the judge said to Cool:

"Of course I'm sorry for you. You are so bedevilled by emotional circumstances that you cannot control. You are entitled to sympathy . . . but I must consider the protection of the public as well as your rehabilitation."

As for the overtones, the judge said Cool's seizure of the girl by the throat "might have had worse results."

Johal, 1251 Balmoral, who pleaded guilty July 22 to a Langford fire protection district bylaw of failing to comply with an order to eliminate a fire hazard. He was given two chances to cover a sawdust area with topsoil, and finally did to the satisfaction of fire officials.

Driver Was 13, Oldest in Car

No names were released by Central Saanich police after five persons were hurt Monday night in a one-car traffic accident—everyone in the car was well under age.

Police said Tuesday the driver, a 13-year-old boy, was the oldest person in the car. One of the passengers also is 13 while the other three in the car each is 12.

The car left the road at about 11:45 p.m. Monday in the 8200 block West Saanich Road, spinning halfway around and hitting a power pole. All five in the car were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Most serious injury was a fractured collarbone suffered by one of the 12-year-olds, a girl. All five are residents of the West Saanich-Cole Bay area. The car was demolished.

King Fisherman

They've Hit Bonanza

While southern Vancouver Island anglers search for the coho and wonder what has happened to them, anglers in mid and north-Island waters are having a bonanza, all the way from Northwest Bay to north of Campbell River.

This will be remembered as the year of the big coho run in upper Island fishing grounds. When, and if they will arrive in lower Island waters is a big question mark. Most optimistic anglers point to other warm and dry summers when the coho arrived late.

"There must be rain for them to get the smell of their home rivers," they say.

Exporter Imports Lumber

Like carrying coals to Newcastle, freighter Rondeggen, from Oslo unloads 1,500,000 board feet of lumber from California in the lumber exporting port of Victoria but it won't stay here long. King Bros., agents for ship says lumber will be loaded onto another vessel for shipment out of country but ultimate destination, at present, is unknown.

Inquest:

Driver Caused Deaths

Two persons died early Aug. 9 in a Saanich traffic accident because of the criminal negligence of one of them, Greater Victoria Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ruled Monday after conducting an inquiry into the double fatality.

The coroner said Edward O'Flynn, 27, of 828 Hockley in Langford, and Linda Fitton, 19, of 107 Quincy in View Royal, died as a result of criminal negligence of O'Flynn in driving his car at speeds of up to 100 miles an hour and while his ability to drive was impaired by alcohol.

Stephen Rogers, 28, also of 107 Quincy, the only other person in the car, was injured in the Trans-Canada Highway accident when the car hit the east end of a concrete bridge spanning Interurban Road.

The coroner said tests showed O'Flynn had a blood-alcohol reading of .17 per cent.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

MacMillan Big Gainer at Toronto

Easier Money in U.S. Gives Stocks a Lift

TORONTO (CP) — A sharp rally brought the market up in more active trading.

Analysts said part of the rally strength probably was due to moves in the United States to loosen the flow of money.

Among rising stocks, Dome Pete was up 1⅛ to 51⅛, MacMillan-Bloedel 1⅛ to 24⅛, International Utilities 1 to 27, Home A ⅜ to 15⅞, Simpsons ⅝ to 15, Denison ⅜ to 24⅜ and Canadian Superior Oil 1⅛ to 32.

Patino climbed ⅛ to 36⅛, Kerr-Addison ⅜ to 11, Roman 30 cents to $6.30, Lake Dufault ¼ to 16, Sherritt ¼ to 18⅞ and Hudson Bay Mining ¼ to 20¼.

Shares of Associated Arcadia Nickel Corp. were suspended from trading. The Toronto Stock Exchange said in a bulletin to members the company had failed to meet requirements for continued listing privileges.

Hills Were Rolling

VANCOUVER — Rolling Hills privided the main action with the stock rising .06 to .65 on a volume of over 200,000 shares.

Elsewhere the movements were mixed.

Ponderay rallied sharply in the oils adding .21 at 1.26, while in the industrials Block came in for attention rising .25 to 3.25 in more than usual activity.

Kaiser was again weak off ⅛ at 11. Ionarc was off .10 at 2.40 but PWA rose ⅝ to 7⅞.

Papers Up Again

MONTREAL (CP) — Steady buying pressure in light trading lifted prices out of the doldrums they had been in most of the month.

The indices showed gains in all sectors. Papers advanced more than a point, followed by industrials, composite and banks. Utilities advanced fractionally.

International Utilities led advances, jumping 1⅛ to 27. MacMillan-Bloedel moved up 1 to 24⅛, Trans Mountain Pipe Line ⅛ to 14¾ and Moore Corp. ⅛ to 29.

Up ⅛ were Power Corp at 6, Pacific Petroleum at 25⅛, Price Co. at 7¾, Cominco at 21⅛, Imperial Oil at 17 and Inco at 40⅝.

Ahead ⅛ were Alcan Aluminum at 20⅜, Massey-Ferguson at 9⅛, Bank of Montreal at 14⅞ and Bank of Nova Scotia at 18⅝.

British Petroleum rose 10 cents to 4.30.

R. L. Crain was weaker by 1⅞ to 12, Dominion Glass ⅝ to 11, TransCanada PipeLines ⅝ to 29⅛, Kaiser Resources ⅝ to 11⅛ and Canadian Hydro ¼ to 13⅛.

Off ⅛ were Industrial Acceptance at 13¼, Aquitaine at 21⅛, Dominion Stores at 12 and Bank of Commerce at 19.

Many Point Gains

NEW YORK (UPI) — Signs that Washington is moving toward a more expansive monetary policy helped turn the market higher. Turnover swelled to 9,500,000 shares, more than 3-million shares above that in the previous session.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips, which ranged between 5 and 7 points higher most of the day, finished with a gain of 7.60 at 716.66.

The federal reserve board, made its first change in bank reserve requirements since April 17, 1969. The board's action raised hope on Wall Street that the government was moving a step closer toward easier money after more than a year of tight credit conditions.

Among the most productive performers were Corning Glass up 5¼, IBM 4⅛, Polaroid 2⅝, Cenco Instruments, Memorex, and Unishops 2½ apiece, and Honeywell 2¼.

Issues up a point or so included Abbott Laboratories, Walt Disney, Avon Products, Johnson & Johnson, Du Pont, Jersey Standard, Standard Oil of California, Natomas, Midwest Oil, Burlington Northern, Norfolk & Western, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Burroughs, and National Cash Register.

Canada Leads All In Oil Expansion

LONDON (AP) — World crude oil production rose a record 105 million tons, or 10 per cent, during the first six months of 1970, Petroleum Press Service reports.

Production in the world jumped to an estimated 1.1 billion metric tons in the first half of 1970 from 1.03 billion in the first six months of 1969, the monthly journal says.

"Production appears to have gone up some 20 million tons in the Western Hemisphere, by 39 million tons in the Middle East, 25 million in Africa, six million in the Far East and 15 million in the Communist world."

The journal also says Canada has shown by far the most rapid expansion in the Western Hemisphere, with production for the six-month period about 15 per cent higher than for the same period last year, largely because of a sharp surge in export demand.

Free Dollar Flexes New Strength

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The Canadian dollar put on a new burst of strength Tuesday when it was trading at new high levels since its unpegging last May.

In trading in the New York money market it rose nearly half a point to a discount of only 1¾ cents to the U.S. dollar, the highest level it has reached since the unpegging at the end of May.

At Montreal, the premium on the U.S. dollar dropped 13-32 to $1.01 27-32. The strength of the Canadian dollar was also reflected in the foreign exchange on sterling. The pound at $2.43¼ was down one cent from Monday.

"It is very difficult to say whether the movement is due to strength of our dollar or weakness of the U.S. dollar," said one local banker. "The fact that the United States is moving rather faster than we are in loosening money and reducing interest rates may be having its influence."

He said investment in Canadian bonds carrying interest rates of more than 9 per cent was interesting U.S. institutions because they were not only buying better rates, but were gambling on what looked the stronger currency.

"A state of parity between the two dollars is no longer a remote possibility," said a local investment dealer, "Canadian reserves of U.S. dollars and gold are running at about $4.4 billion, or nearly double what they were two years ago. The Bank of Canada cannot indefinitely keep on buying U.S. dollars in an effort to stabilize the market."

Lower interest rates in Canada are believed by many to be inevitable if the present money exchange trend continues.

Purse Strings Loosened

A decision of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board reducing the reserve requirements of banks holding time deposits more than $5 million from 6 per cent to 5 per cent, together with a similar reserve on commercial paper, has loosened the purse strings of the U.S. banks by an approximate $350 million.

The two actions are regarded as part of the Federal Reserves attempt to get the economy rolling again.

HUET BY STRIKE

Canada's most northerly railway, the White Pass and Yukon, encountered a drop in earnings during the first half of 1970 although the cash flow from operations was higher than a year ago.

Net earnings of $776,416 compared with $807,379 a year earlier while cash flow was up at $2,369,722 from $2,034,749.

Some of the company's newly acquired facilities were operated at less than capacity and this condition is expected to continue until some time next year.

Earnings for the second quarter were higher than the first quarter and the second half is expected to produce further improvement, although a 34 days complete shut down of operations owing to strike will cause substantial losses over the period, which ended only last Sunday.

White Pass and Yukon operates between Skagway in Alaska to Whitehorse and has trucking facilities to other points of the Yukon including Pelly River the site of the big Anvil basemetal mine.

LIPTON FOOD MERGER

Thomas J. Lipton, Ltd., has acquired Langis Foods Limited, a Burnaby firm that manufactures a broad line of food products for the restaurant, hotel and institutional trade as well as a number of packaged products for the consumer market.

Lipton is well-known for its tea and other food products and is the firm that was founded by Tommy Lipton, the British sportsman who tried time and again to win the America Cup with his line of Shamrock yachts.

DIVIDEND RESUMED

The improved earnings trend of Laurentide Financial Corporation has enabled the company to resume payments on its common shares.

Payments stopped with the 10 cents payment in September 1966 and none has been paid since.

The resumption with a dividend of 5 cents a share will be paid Sept. 30, four years after the last payment.

Officials of the company say it is hoped to make the dividend a regular quarterly payment.

Laurentide had previously announced its first-half net earnings at $1,992,863 (31.8 cents a share).

Salt Pays Dividend

Canadian Salt is paying an extra dividend this year of 10 cents along with its usual 15 cents quarterly dividend on Sept. 30.

It paid no extra last year.

SUGAR BOND RATED

The new issue of $9,500,000 first mortgage sinking fund bonds of B.C. Sugar Refinery will have an interest rate of 9½ per cent and will be offered to the public at par. They are due to mature Sept. 15, 1987.

BEATING OIL SLICK

Shell Oil Company says it has completed tests to show that its Sand Sink method of clearing oil slick from water surfaces is 95 per cent effective.

Operating in conjunction with The Netherlands Ministry of Traffic and the Institute of Fisheries research, Shell spread 100 tons of oil on water and then treated it with a slurry of treated sand and water.

Later 95 tons of oil was recovered from the ocean floor at a depth of about 80 feet.

The sand is treated with an amine to make it oleophilic. When sprayed on the affected surface it takes the oil to the bottom.

Although for 30 days after the treatment small quantities of oil reappeared the film was so thin as to have no effect on fish and birds.

Netherlands and British fisheries departments conducted extensive tests of the effect of the sunken oil on trawler fishing, and they found that for a few days both nets and fish caught showed signs of having been in contact with oil.

However, fish and shrimps that were immediately placed in clean running water lost the smell and taste of oil and were fit for consumption.

Shell says its sand sink method is considered eminently suitable for coping with very large pollution at sea.

Time-Saver Flights

Harbor-to-Harbor, Pronto

By ROY WRIGHT

Time is important to a business executive.

He seldom has time to take a B.C. ferry to Vancouver for trips to head office or other contacts.

The only other way to get off the Island is to fly.

Air Canada has scheduled flights to Vancouver airport, but time is sometimes too short for even this method.

There are two companies in the Victoria area that provide this service: Air West Airlines Ltd. and Victoria Flying Services.

* * *

And it's surprising how many businessmen take advantage of these flights.

Air West reports 17,000 people used their planes last year and about 10,000 people this year up until Aug. 1.

Victoria Flying Services has no statistics on number of passengers carried.

A spokesman for Air West, Rod Clayards, said about 90 per cent of the people the firm's planes carry are businessmen. Victoria Flying Services reported the same percentage.

Air West flys six days a week. Clayards said more than 95 per cent of the flights were on time and only .7 per cent of the flights were cancelled last year because of bad weather.

A businessman can stroll down the Air West dock at the Inner Harbor a little before 8 a.m. and climb aboard one of the seven passenger Beaver seaplanes.

* * *

A few seconds later it has circled around the breakwater and is heading across Victoria at 1,500 feet.

Depending on the wind, the plane will land in Vancouver harbor 25 to 35 minutes later.

Just before arriving at Vancouver the pilot asks if anyone would like a cab. If so he radios the Vancouver office and a cab is waiting for the businessman as he steps down from the plane.

Victoria Flying Service flights take about one hour. They make stops at Salt Spring, Mayne, Galiano, Saturna and South Pender islands before arriving at the Bayshore Inn.

* * *

One Victoria businessman who uses Air West frequently said his company uses the service to bring staff out from Vancouver as well as take the Victoria staff to head office.

"You can leave the Inner Harbor and be in a meeting in Vancouver in less than an hour," says Morris Turner.

He said with Air Canada, a person still has to fight the traffic to get into the heart of Vancouver.

Businessmen aren't the only people who need fast flights. Medical emergencies also are part of the small plane business.

Clayards said when there is a mercy flight call, a plane leaves at once. It returns as quickly as possible, but radios ahead for an ambulance.

"We never worry about collecting money for these flights because almost everyone we have flown has come back and paid us without even a bill," he said.

Clayards said Air West also gives public service such as reporting of flares, oil slicks and fires.

Every morning Air West pilots radio weather conditions to the Victoria office from Duncan, Nanaimo, Vancouver and the Victoria area. From here they are broadcast on a local radio station.

Clayards emphasized the safety features of flight plans. "We are almost always over water and when we are over land, water can be reached by gliding with no problem."

Clayards, who is also a pilot, said the type of planes used on these flights can land in a sea with a four-foot chop with no difficulty at all, if the need arises.

For groups going to and from Victoria, a plane may be chartered from either company.

Everybody Took Gander At Great Winged Goose

But when a Grumman Goose of Air West Airlines Ltd. landed Monday afternoon, hundreds of passengers waiting for the CP's Princess Marguerite stopped to take a closer look.

Its two engines developing 900 horsepower purred as it came to the small dock. The Goose dwarfed it.

With a wing span of about 58 feet and the hull about 40 feet long, most docks would look small.

Why such a large plane?

A spokesman for the company, Rod Clayards, said the firm had been so busy, they needed the larger plane to accommodate all the people who were flying the route.

The Goose carried an extra two passengers, but the real saving, Clayards says, is the fast time it can make between Vancouver and Victoria.

* * *

Instead of taking about 40 minutes, dock to dock, the Goose can make the flight in about 30 minutes.

Clayards said the plane will be making the flight for the rest of the week, but hoped they could get a Goose on the flight permanently.

If they get a Goose for the run, Clayards said they would likely build another dock so it would be able to come out of the water "as it looks so ungainly crowded in at the small dock."

Basic Industries

Jobs Review: Hard Times

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government statistics show that 92,000 fewer workers were employed this spring than a year earlier in the basic industries of primary production, manufacturing, and the utilities including transportation.

These are the industries that most directly reflect good times or hard times in the economy as a whole.

There was a decline of 29,000 in the numbers employed in manufacturing, a drop of 1.6 per cent to 1.8 million in the total employment roll of 7.9 million.

Employment in agriculture and other primary industries declined by 36,000 to 750,000. Employment in transportation and the other utilities was down by 27,000 to 691,000.

The figures are given in a Dominion Bureau of Statistics report reviewing the employment picture as reported earlier in monthly statements about employment and unemployment.

Unemployment in July rose to 6.7 per cent of the 8.4 million labor force, taking into account seasonal adjustments.

The total number of workers employed rose 81,000 in the second quarter of this year, an increase of one per cent. Major increases in employment in the service industries overcame the declining employment in basic industry.

This one-per-cent increase followed a gain of only nine-tenths of one per cent in total employment during the first quarter of 1970 over the same period last year.

DBS said year-to-year gains of one per cent or less had not occurred previously in Canada since the recent long period of economic expansion began in 1961.

Male employment was virtually unchanged this spring from what it was in April, May and June last year. There was a three-per-cent increase in female employment, accounting entirely for the one-per-cent increase in the total employment roll.

Foreign Ownership Exemption Denied

TORONTO (CP) — An executive with Gulf Mineral Co. says the firm is not asking for an exemption from government rules on foreign ownership to develop uranium property in northern Saskatchewan.

Gulf Minerals announced Friday its uranium properties are to be developed by a joint venture including a West German company, Uranerz-Bonn.

Roman Corp. Ltd. released Monday a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau from its president, Stephen Roman, saying government approval of the Gulf plan would be inconsistent with Ottawa's earlier action in preventing Denison Mines Ltd. from becoming foreign-controlled. Roman is also president of Denison and his plans to sell controlling interest to a United States firm were blocked in March.

Datsun Eyes U.S. Market

TOKYO (Reuters) — One of Japan's leading car manufacturers announced plans to double exports in a bid to capture 15 per cent of the U.S. small car market within three years.

The Nissan Motor Co. said exports to the U.S. would be doubled to 300,000 a year by 1973.

Nissan plans to market its Datsun 1200 model in the U.S. for the first time next month.

Reds' Loss to Expos No Cause for Concern

Of the four division leaders in the major baseball leagues, only Cincinnati had its margin cut Tuesday ... and the Reds aren't likely to lose much sleep over it.

Slightly startled in their home ball park by Montreal Expos and victims of a 7-4 defeat, the Reds are still 12 games ahead of second-place Los Angeles Dodgers in the west division of the National League.

The Expos built a 5-0 lead with a four-run splurge in the fifth inning, three on a bases-loaded error by Bernie Carbo on Coco Laboy's line drive. They gave back four runs in the bottom of the inning on three hits and three errors but picked up single runs in the sixth and ninth innings. Steve Renko, with late help from Claude Raymond, gained his eighth win in 16 decisions.

The dodgers picked up a full game as rookie Sandy Vance checked the on-again-off-again St. Louis Cardinals on five hits and Wes Parker slammed three singles and double for a 7-2 victory.

Pittsburgh Pirates, the east leaders, remained two and a half games ahead of New York Mets with a 6-2 win over San Francisco Giants as Bob Robertson drove in three runs with a home run and triple.

Gery Gentry fired a four-hitter and slammed a run-scoring double as the Mets whipped Houston Astros, 7-1.

CUBS SLIP AGAIN

Chicago Cubs, who had moved within four games of first place on Monday, slipped to five off the pace when they were thumped 11-3 by San Diego Padres.

Reliever Hoyt Wilhelm gained credit for his fifth win in eight decisions when Clete Boyer slammed a leadoff home run in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Atlanta a 3-2 win over Philadelphia.

TWINS PROTECT EDGE

In the American League, Minnesota Twins edged New York Yankees, 8-7, for their second straight win after a nine-game losing streak.

A two-run, ninth-inning single by Jim Holt gave Twins the victory and kept them four and a half games ahead of California Angels, who blasted Cleveland Indians, 12-1.

Clyde Wright, benefitting from a nine-run, seventh-inning explosion, became just the second pitcher in Angels history to win 17 games. The only other California pitcher to win as many was Dean Chance, who was on the mound for Cleveland and took the loss. Chance won 20 games for Angels in 1964.

Yankees' loss dropped them 10 games behind the leading Baltimore Orioles, who blanked Milwaukee 3-0 on Jim Hardin's five-hit pitching and a home run by Merv Rettenmund, in the east division.

STREAK SNAPPED

Washington Senators' seven-game win streak, the longest in Ted Williams' tenure as manager, was snapped by Kansas City Chiefs.

Bob Oliver's 25th homer of the season, with two on base in the seventh, was the big blow in the 12-8 Chiefs' victory.

In other games, Detroit edged Oakland, 3-1, as Mickey Lolich won his 11th game in 25 decisions; and Boston Red Sox exploded for six runs in the fifth inning to come from behind and down Chicago White Sox, 8-4.

Namath Reports but Doubts He Can Play

Declaring that he doubts he can play but "going to find out in the next couple or three weeks," quarterback Joe Namath rejoined New York Jets Tuesday. He said his problems that kept him away from camp were both business and physical but wouldn't elaborate. He later said in a television interview that he had lost his enthusiasm for football and blamed last year's 13-7 loss to Kansas City Chiefs in an AFL playoff game as changing his frame of mind. He described it as "a horrible experience (of) being humiliated ..." — (AP)

ALEC MERRIMAN

There is no danger of deer population on Vancouver Island ever being wiped out by hunters. That assurance was given to Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association members Monday by Regional Wildlife Biologist Ian Smith.

He also predicted that hunting in the Campbell River-Nimpkish north Island area will "be back up again this year," well on the road to recovery after the ravages of the 1968-69 severe winter which hit the inland Nimpkish mid-Island deer populations badly, but was less destructive to Campbell River and other coastal populations.

Smith explained that some species of animals are easily hunted and in danger, but added that with deer and hunters there is no problem. But it is another story with elk.

"You can effectively clean out a pocket of elk. Hunters could make them extinct on Vancouver Island," he said. That is why elk hunting has been stopped in southern Vancouver Island regions and restricted to bulls in northern Island regions.

"We may some day have a closed season on elk in the north Island," he said.

The 1968-69 winter hit the elk severely on the south Island.

"I think we are going to have a reasonable year for deer hunters," Smith said. "The deer population is not in trouble."

He said fawn counts now being taken by field men indicate "one of the best fawn counts on record. The deer are coming back up. After probably the severest winter kill on record, we had no appreciable drop in hunter success."

Smith, who might be termed a young computer biologist, befuddled his audience with figures and graphs ... so much so that members had little fight left when he threw out the bait that would have started a three-hour, or longer, battle in Victoria Fish and Game Club meetings.

"As long as the public wants to shoot does and continues to do so, we have to let them. It is not hurting the deer population to shoot does," he said.

But, by the time he said that, the members' heads were filled with so many statistics to prove the biologist's beliefs, that they had little to say.

"The average hunter on Vancouver Island gets his deer. Some don't, but for everyone who doesn't some get two," he explained. The per-cent hunter-success figures from 1968 and 1969, following the hard winter, showed only a small drop. "The reason," Smith said, "was the amount of effort. It took more trips for a hunter to get his deer."

In 1950 hunter success was just under 50 per cent. In 1962-63 it was up to 130 per cent, which meant the average hunter got more than one deer. It is still more than 100 per cent, said Smith.

In 1968 there were 28,000 hunters. In 1969 there were only 19,000. The harvest, as a result of tough winter, shorter season, less hunters dropped to 16,000 deer, from 22,000 deer.

Habitat is the problem on Vancouver Island, he said.

It may already be too late for any immediate benefits of land-use programs on Vancouver Island, he said. The damage has been done. It is a case of waiting for time to take its course and in some areas like the Cowichan district's Robertson River Valley it may take 100 years to 300 years to improve appreciably.

Vancouver Island ranges could carry 100 deer a square mile if managed exclusively for deer, but that wouldn't make economical sense. But there should be a land-use balance ... a compromise, he said.

Habitat conditions are resulting in deer-population declines in Copper Canyon, Northwest Bay and Sooke and at Campbell River populations have peaked and are now dropping slightly, he said.

Smith said outlook for grouse is good, but there has been a late second hatch and hunters will have to watch for small birds. A late hatch and an early-than-usual hunting season should mean hunters will get to shoot the grouse before they start migrating to the hills.

Migratory bird shooting seasons have been announced.

First to become fair game are the band-tailed pigeons Sept. 1 to Oct. 25 (note they don't come in with grouse on Aug. 29) with a daily bag of 10, two-day possession. A $2 migratory bird permit, only obtainable from the post office is required for all migratory birds, including pigeons.

Ducks and coots come in season Oct. 10 to Jan. 10, with bag limit of eight, two-day possession, and another two-day possession in home freezer; Geese and Wilson's snipe, Oct. 24 to Jan. 10, bag limit 10 geese, only four of which may be brant, two-day possession, two-day in freezer; black brant Dec. 26 to March 10.

Bag limit for grouse on Vancouver Island this year has been upped to 10 for willows and 10 for blues, with three-day possession.

Next game: Tonight — Vancouver at VICTORIA, Memorial Arena, 8 p.m.

If there is any way to successfully conclude such a season, Victoria Shamrocks will do it tonight at Memorial Arena.

The Shamrocks, who suffered their 21st loss in 29 games last night in Vancouver, will honor their standout players in the annual Awards' Night ceremony between the second and third periods. And they want the kids of Victoria to be their guests.

Vancouver Burrards, villains in a 14-10 decision last night, are the only ones who can spoil the windup. They clinched at least a tie for second place Tuesday and could wrap up No. 2 spot with a win tonight.

Veterans Gord Frederickson and Don Hamilton sparked Burrards to their victory.

Frederickson scored four goals and set up two others while Hamilton, an 11-year veteran in the nets, stopped 45 shots and was particularly brilliant in the third period when Shamrocks applied their strongest pressure of the night.

Game time is eight o'clock and everyone under 16 will be admitted free.

Swanson's Pitching Prolongs Series

A brilliant one-hitter by Bob Swanson led Lake Cowichan to a 3-1 win over Bate Construction Tuesday night at Central Park in a Victoria Major Men's Softball League semi-final series.

Tom Bourne was the only Bates' batter to get on base, stroking a two-out single in the fourth inning.

Lakers scored twice in the third inning when Pat Shepard, who singled and advanced to second on a sacrifice, scored on Bob Boudoe's single and Ralph Branting followed with a triple.

Branting added an insurance run in the sixth when he doubled and came in on two passed balls.

Pair of Early Touchdowns Give Als Win Over Eskimos

"The Colonel" has written to the executive committee of the Victoria Golf Club telling them that it is time for him to retire. Eric Parker has been secretary of British Columbia's oldest golf club for the past 16 years and in the period has made himself almost a part of the bricks and mortar.

The committee has accepted the request with regret, and the colonel will stay on until his successor is appointed and installed.

During his period of office the club has gone through exciting and sometimes difficult times.

There was the remodelling of the clubhouse, changes in a number of holes on the course, the commonwealth team matches, a Shell Wonderful World of Golf match, and more recently the all-automatic sprinkler system.

Throughout it all the colonel has kept his "cool," although he would prefer perhaps if it was described as "sang froid." Not that he is a Frenchman, but he is a stickler for what he loves to call tradition.

It's his Indian Army training. In his younger days he was one of the King Emperor's pukka sahibs which meant that radical innovations were to be shunned like the Black Hole of Calcutta.

When he came to Victoria as Lieutenant Colonel (ret) he became secretary of a branch of the Canadian Legion, and it was from there he moved to his desk at Victoria Golf Club.

The Colonel had one instant problem. It transpired he knew nothing about golf. And he did not hide the fact. He would look in bland amazement as a member of the committee explained the difference between stroke-play and match-play golf. He looked resigned when members talked to him about birdies and eagles, and if anyone had asked him about a trap, he would have probably assumed it was something with which to catch one of the clubhouse mice.

But Eric used his innocence to excellent purpose, and he proceeded in his own quiet way to "become acquainted" with the game that for many years was to become his life. To this day however, I have never seen him swing a club.

Eric Parker

However, when it came to dealing with up to 100 members, all ages, both sexes, some easy and some difficult, the colonel was completely in his element. He had his own way of dealing with situations, and in that way he took a lot of the weight off the committee.

It wasn't very long before members became used to receiving short official notices from the secretary informing them of club and social events, usually described as "traditional" to the club.

If they were not traditional when they were instituted, it was only a few years before the colonel would decide that they had indeed become "traditional." As he wrote the notices, he had the last word.

I had a lot to do with the colonel when organizing the Commonwealth team matches in 1967, and it was then that I began to find the real character of the man. The Commonwealth job, of course, was right down his street in Poona, and by gad he made an excellent job of the clubhouse end of the international event. When he said a thing would be done, it was done.

Like most of his breed, the colonel was, and is, a firm believer in the commonwealth and all that it stands for. He was secretly deeply grieved, I feel, when the club ordered him to pull down the Union Jack from the big flagpole where it had flown daily for 70 years to replace it with the new Canadian flag. A tradition had been snapped.

However, everyone is entitled to reach a stage when he deserves a rest from a job of long and uncertain hours such as is demanded of a golf secretary. The members of the club will miss him and wish him all the best in his retirement.

He came to the club at a time when it had gone through a great deal of secretary difficulties, and there is no doubt whatever that he filled the bill at a vital time in the history of the club.

Apart from Leo Derman who has been at the helm of Gorge Vale for over 22 years, there is no other local golf secretary who has been so long in office as Eric Parker.

Advertisements have been inserted across the country, and already there are some 40 applicants, so lots of people think a golf club secretary's job is the next step to heaven. Maybe they're right, but it is an acquired taste, and not everyone has the peculiar talents required.

Ned games: Thursday — Calgary vs. B.C. Lions at Vancouver; Edmonton at Toronto.

MONTREAL — Montreal Alouettes struck for two first-half touchdowns Tuesday night and then hung on to edge Edmonton Eskimos, 14-10, for their third victory in as many Canadian Football League starts.

Quarterback Sonny Wade hit flanker Terry Evanshen with touchdown passes of 19 and seven yards as Alouettes jumped to a 13-0 lead, and later kicked Montreal's final point. Pierre Guindon coverted one of the touchdowns.

Edmonton's only touchdown came on a brilliant, 81-yard pass-and-run play from Rusty Clark to Mike Eben. Dave Cutler converted the touchdown and scored three singles on missed field-goal attempts of 48, 17 and seven yards.

SECOND IN 10 YEARS

The win was only the second for Montreal over the Eskimos in 10 seasons of interlocking play. The Eskimos have won seven and one game ended in a tie.

The only other victory for the Als over Edmonton came in 1965 when Montreal grabbed a 24-13 win in the Alberta city.

The loss was the second in a row for the Eskimos who visit Toronto Argonauts Thursday night to wind up their Eastern swing.

ALS SCORE EARLY

Collins ran the ball back to the 19 and on the next play Wade found Evanshen in the end zone for the touchdown.

Montreal struck for their other touchdown early in the second quarter as Wade fired a seven-yard pass to Evanshen completing a 10-play march which started on Montreal's 38 yard line.

WENT TO AIR

Trailing 2-13 starting the second half, Eskimos went to the air after failing to establish a ground attack.

Clark clicked on the pass to Eban late in the quarter, the latter making a fine catch and knifing between the final two defenders and streaking the last 40 yards without any great threat.

Clark and Trull, who alternated much of the way, completed 23 of 40 pass attempts for a total of 344 yards but two interceptions, inopportune penalties and missed field goals cooled the attack.

TRIED BOOKIE

When Wade was unable to move Alouettes consistently in the third quarter, coach Sam Etcheverry switched to rookie Tony Passander, former quarterback from The Citadel. He failed to connect on any one of four passes, but scrambled for 27 yards on three carries and moved the ball deep into Edmonton territory three times.

Eskimos final threat fizzled in the last minute when a long touchdown run was nullified when an attempt lateral was ruled a forward pass.

Evanshen took over first place in the east division scoring race, boosting his total to 24 points, five more than Wade. The 26-year-old former Calgary Stampeder has four touchdowns.

Amos April Goes to Starting-Gate School

Ex-Fighter Killed In Accident

VANCOUVER — Funeral services will be held here today for Edward Harry 'Eddie' Haddad, 42 who was killed Friday near Hope when struck by a truck.

Haddad was an outstanding lightweight boxer, held the Canadian championship and was named Canada's outstanding athlete in 1948. He was serving with the Royal Canadian Navy at Esquimalt at the time.

In his top year, Haddad won the B.C. Golden Gloves, the Pacific Northwest championship, the B.C. title and represented Canada at the Olympic Games in London.

Haddad is survived by his wife, one son Eddie at home, his parents and five brothers and two sisters in Winnipeg.

Vicettes Are Champs

Only one thing is certain in the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League — Vicettes have won their third straight playoff title to go with three league championships.

Vicettes' coach Wally Yeamans claims that Tuesday night's 2-1 win over Cablevision was an exhibition and that the B.C. Amateur Softball Association threw out Cablevision's protest of a 5-4 loss to Vicettes on Aug. 10.

Al Beasley, supervisor of Lower Vancouver Island senior softball for the provincial organization says that as far as he's concerned, Vicettes won the best-of-three series, 2-1.

The league presented the most-valuable-player award to Vicettes' Dodie Skaife and Westendale Constructionettes' Heather Wood, the sportsmanship award to Tudor House's Jean Deslippe and the coaching award to Charlie Granewall of Cablevision.

Cablevision will compete in this weekend's B.C. junior women double-knockout championship at New Westminster's Moody Park. Prince George, New Westminster and Vancouver Omegas have also entered.

Job Problem On Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Thousands of students are unemployed this summer and the problem is expected to grow during the 1970s.

The manpower department won't know until October how many of the 641,000 students seeking summer jobs had luck. But the number who did not is expected to be sizable.

Meanwhile, enrolment in the range from high school to university postgraduate levels is expected to increase by 127,000, or 6.3 per cent, next month. The figure will continue to rise through the 1970s.

A study by A. E. Kyffin of the manpower department ties the problem of summer unemployment to high birth rates in the 1950s, high post-war immigration and prolongation of formal education.

Births rose from 375,000 in 1947 to 420,000 in 1953 and to 480,000 in 1960, the peak year. In the 1960s, the pill apparently has influenced the birth rate and last year's figure was 370,000 births.

Kyffin says this means the crest of the new population wave is still in elementary school.

"In about seven years time it will move into the post-secondary age group," he says. "Not until the early 1980s will the peak have passed through all stages of the education system."

At the same time, youngsters have been staying in school longer. In 1950, fewer than half the 14-17 age group remained in school. The figure is about 90 per cent today.

"By 1980," he predicts, "the secondary level of education will probably have replaced the elementary level as the universal basic standard."

"'Dropping out' will likely soon be a thing of the past. . . . Attendance at university or college at the end of the decade may well be as common as high school attendance was about two decades ago."

The Economic Council of Canada says university enrolment alone will rise 2½ times to 720,000 by 1980.

Postal Crunch Near?

OTTAWA (CP) — Time may be running out in the lengthy postal dispute, government sources say.

A spokesman for Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said Tuesday a cabinet meeting next week is expected to decide, if the deadlock persists, on measures to end the rotating strikes which postal workers have been using since May.

The government has been retaliating by closing down regional offices in some areas hit by the strikes.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who will be back from a Caribbean vacation for the cabinet meeting, told a news conference in Prince George earlier this month that if no progress was being made, the government would have to bring the situation to a "crunch," Trudeau said.

The government could order a full-scale closing of the post office, enforce arbitration or legislate a return to work, the prime minister said.

The Ottawa report had little impact in Victoria.

"I don't know who he's threatening — us or the Treasury Board," said Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria local of the Canadian Union of Postal Employees.

"He has made the same sort of threat before."

Gas Overcomes Children

Lifeguard administers oxygen to one of 50 London, Ont., children overcome by chlorine gas leaking from tank of community swimming pool, Tuesday. Seven youngsters remain in hospital. Vomiting, coughing children lay on ground and stretchers while ambulance attendants and doctors administered oxygen and first aid. Officials believe a faulty valve may have caused the mishap. About 100 youngsters were in pool at time. (CP)

Pickersgill Stalls Rail Probe

'Bias' Hearing Today

WINNIPEG (CP) — A challenge to J. W. Pickersgill's fitness to sit in judgment on matters dealing with the CPR goes into court today.

Pickersgill, president of the Canadian Transport Commission, is accused by the rail unions of having shown "conscious or unconscious bias" in favor of CP Rail in particular and the railways in general.

He responded Tuesday to the disruptions of legal manoeuvring by postponing, until some time in October, the commission's Winnipeg public hearings on proposals by the CPR to reduce passenger train service and passenger train losses.

"There would be no useful purpose in holding further hearings in Winnipeg at this time," he said in referring to the proceedings on the CPR's proposals for curtailed operation of its Montreal-Toronto-Vancouver passenger train, The Canadian.

Pickersgill also said: "Moreover, it will be appreciated that it is a rather painful thing for me to have to sit with a cloud hanging over my head and I would prefer to have that cloud removed."

U.K. Joining Space Club

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain will enter the space club in two weeks with a multi-purpose satellite to be launched from the Woomera rocket range in Australia.

It will be the first all-British venture into space, using the three-stage Black Arrow rocket.

Blacks Rap Police Chief

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — More than 300 angry blacks stormed into a city commission meeting Tuesday with a list of 10 demands that included the immediate firing of Police Chief Joe Ziegler.

The commissioners, meeting in special session following the third night of sniping, firebombing and looting here and in nearby Hollywood and Dania, accepted the list of demands, but made no promises to act.

"We will accept no more broken promises," a spokesman for the blacks told the commission, "nor will we be intimidated by the harassment of the police force."

At least two dozen businesses and schools have been firebombed, two dozen persons arrested, three stores looted and four persons injured during the racial strife in the three towns surrounding populous Fort Lauderdale.

Among the other demands was the immediate arrest and prosecution of the Pompano Beach police officer who shot and killed a 25-year-old black man Saturday. The shooting is believed to have triggered the violence.

Venus, Mercury Probes, Then . . .

Planet Tours Next

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A U.S. Mariner spacecraft equipped with television cameras will fly by Venus and Mercury in 1974 in what the mission's scientific coordinator calls a forerunner of Grand Tours of the planets.

Grand Tours, proposed for the end of this decade, would use the gravitational force of the planets to swing a spacecraft some three billion miles to the edge of the solar system.

The Mariner to be launched in the fall of 1973 will employ the gravity of Venus, to reach Mercury, nearest planet to the sun and in an orbit 50 to 136 million miles from Earth.

Without this boost, said Dr. James A. Dunne, "it would take half again as much energy and place it beyond the capabilities of our launch vehicle.

Little is known about Mercury which is smaller by one-third than Venus and Earth.

Dunne says space flights to such distant planets as Mercury are worth the expenditure—in this case $98 million.

Dunne's team of 45 scientists from 21 universities will examine data including what he hopes will be hundreds of pictures of Mercury, some from as close as 625 miles, and clearer than telescopic view of the moon. Previous Mariner missions dispelled a number of myths about Mars but left open a number of mysteries about Venus.

In Moscow, Soviet scientists Tuesday aimed the nation's biggest telescope at the Venus 7 spacecraft as it hurtled on its million-mile journey toward the cloud-covered planet.

The official news agency Tass said experts at the Crimean astrophysical observatory mounted an "electronic-optical converter and a highly sensitive television system" on the big telescope to watch the spacecraft when it was about 102,000 miles from Earth.

U.S. Role in Europe

NATO Fears Troop Cutback

BRUSSELS (AP) — Military sources at NATO headquarters here are worried that President Nixon's administration will ask Congress to cut United States military strength in Europe beginning in mid-1971.

They are concerned because they say Soviet air and naval strength is building up in the Middle East and its military muscle is increasing in central Europe while the U.S. is talking about cutting forces.

Cuts might reduce the strength of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

"The Soviet navy is now firmly established in the Mediterranean," one source said. "They have good surface-to-surface missiles. They have their own tactical planes and pilots on the southern littoral of the Mediterranean. There are reports of longer-range Soviet planes in Egypt too, though there is some question whether their pilots are Soviet or Egyptian.

"It does not matter what their mission happens to be at the moment—they are a distraction to our forces in carrying out our responsibilities, which is seeing to the needs of the NATO countries in this area: Italy, Greece, Turkey. They reduce our flexibility."

Fire Turns Sky Color of Blood

LOVELL, Wyo. (UPI) — A forest fire which turned the night sky the color of blood burned uncontrolled Tuesday through a four-mile long section of the Big Horn National Forest near the Montana border.

Rangers said it was the worst forest fire they could remember in Wyoming. More than 350 weary firefighters were rushed by air and car from the Shoshone National Forest 150 miles away where they were mopping-up after a weekend blaze that destroyed nearly 1,000 acres.

"I've never seen one this big spread so fast," said Forest Ranger Bob Joslin. "The wind came, it blew up and away she went."

The fire, spotted at 2 p.m. Monday by a forest service reconnaissance flight, destroyed about 200 acres in 30 minutes, Joslin said. It had destroyed 2,500 acres by Tuesday.

It was the fourth fire in two weeks in the heavily forested state.

Ferry Crash Inquiry On Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Judge E. J. C. Stewart of Vancouver's county court will preside over the formal inquiry into collision of the Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin and the British Columbia ferry Queen of Victoria, the transport department announced Tuesday.

Three persons were killed in the Aug. 2 collision which occurred in a narrow passage along the ferry's Victoria-Vancouver route.

The inquiry will be held under the Canada Shipping Act. Its hearings open today in Vancouver.

25,000 Flee 'Bomb'

LONDON (Reuters) — Police ordered the evacuation of more than 25,000 people from 39 movie theatres Tuesday night following an anonymous telephone threat that a bomb had been placed in one of a chain of theatres.

Earlier in the day, a bomb scare at the House of Commons highlighted official fears that London may turn into a battleground for the troubles of Northern Ireland.

The Tuesday night scare forced evacuation of theatres in the Rank Organization chain. The theatres were showing the film Airport, which involves a bomb plot aboard a plane, and the anonymous caller told police the bomb would go off in a theatre at the same time as one in the film.

Lake Road Later

The four-lane section of Patricia Bay Highway along the eastern shore of Elk Lake won't be built this year, a highway department spokesman told the Colonist Tuesday.

"It's too late," he said. "Design work is not completed. There have been no estimates of materials, no profiles. There is no scheduling as yet. No construction work will be done this year."

Widening of the highway in this area came to light Monday when the Saanich Chamber of Commerce wrote Highways Minister Wesley Black asking for specific information on proposed construction.

The chamber asked Black if his department planned on dumping fill into the lake for at least 40 to 50 feet and on removing all trees on the east side of the lake.

The highways department spokesman denied Tuesday that fill would be put in the lake or that the beach would be destroyed. Only two or three trees would be cut down, he added.

Only a "small sliver" of the parking lot at the Black Swan would be cut away, he said, and a retaining wall would be built.

Don Graham, 5140 Patricia Bay Highway, asked the Colonist what would happen to his front yard when the highway was widened. "Are they going to cut us off?" he asked, "or are they going to cut in behind us?"

The highways department spokesman said he hadn't seen plans for the four-lane section yet but properties such as Graham's would definitely not be cut off.

"We'll provide access one way or another," he said, "but I think it will be from the front."

He said the proposed freeway route along the Cordova Bay Ridge is a tentative plan for the future.

"It may still come," he said, "but it has been put aside in favor of the widening at Elk Lake. And because this section won't be built to freeway standards, I imagine the properties along the road will have access as they have now."

Longtime Rector of St. John's

Beloved Cleric Dies

Victoria's grand old man of the church, Canon George Biddle who was rector of St. John's Anglican Church since 1940 and retired in 1965 after 40 years of service to the church, died Tuesday. He was 76.

Biddle, who could recall riding a horse through the foothills helping farmers with their chores, was born in Bournemouth, England, and came to Canada in his middle teens as a member of the Archbishop of Canterbury's mission to western Canada.

He was one of a group at Cardston, Alta., living communal lives, working, studying and helping to carry the gospel to much of southern Alberta. They built houses and churches, prepared their own food and Biddle sometimes cooked for as many as 40 men.

In 1914 he went overseas as a private and was proud of the fact that he rose through the ranks to become a staff-sergeant.

He was stricken during an attack of mustard gas which left him in the hospital for 11 months.

He rejoined the mission after the war then moved to Pincher Creek, Alta. Rev. Charles Bishop, rector of St. George's Church in Cadboro Bay, where Biddle attended, was a member of the Canon's Wolf Cub group in Pincher Creek.

Biddle once recalled going to the small community of Dinton, Alta., to open a church that had not been used for some years.

Led by a dedicated woman the congregation shined up the church and attended every service. When it came time for him to return to theological college the entire congregation went to the station, which was 15 miles from Dinton, to wish him goodbye. The church warden handed him an envelope containing a new $100 bill together with a list of the people who had chipped in nickels, dimes and quarters to make up the amount.

Biddle

After the war he returned to Alberta, went to Theological College at St. John's in Winnipeg, then to the Anglican College in Vancouver.

He was ordained a deacon at Pincher Creek and a priest in the cathedral in Calgary. In addition to service at Pincher Creek he was in charge of the church at High River, Alta., St. Barnabas in Calgary and St. Philip's, Vancouver.

When St. John's in Victoria burned down in 1960 and was rebuilt at a cost of $500,000 the congregation retired the debt in three years. "That is the spirit of St. John's — it is the spirit that will not die," Biddle said at the time.

He was presented with the Centennial Medal for outstanding service to Canada.

Funeral services are to be held in St. John's Church at 2 p.m. Friday. McCall Brothers are in charge of arrangements.

He is survived by his wife Ethel and youngest daughter Joan, at home, and two married daughters, Mrs. G. R. (Ann) Lightbody in Vancouver and Mrs. J. D. (Mary) Jameson of Victoria.

Oak Bay

Car Wash Ban Proposed

Commercial car washes will be prohibited in Oak Bay under a proposed zoning bylaw passed by council earlier this week.

Mayor Frances Elford said the bylaw was initiated after a property owner indicated he was considering establishing a car wash on his property.

"We didn't want it to be possible that this could pop up in any zone," she said. "It is a general activity that is not compatible with a location close to a residential area."

The bylaw says it will prohibit both "automatic or manual" washing, but the mayor said it would not include washing in existing garage zones.

Earlier this year council decided there were enough service stations in the municipality and rezoned all land holding a garage zoning to eliminate the possibility of any being built.

Asked what type of buildings would be the next to be banned from the municipality, Mayor Elford said: "Nothing, until something else occurs to us."

Exploding Bulb Injures Man

Kenneth Jones, of 2984 Oakdowne, Oak Bay, was released from Royal Jubilee Hospital after being treated for cuts to both hands received Tuesday when a fluorescent light bulb he was washing in the Angus Marine Building, Queens and Douglas, exploded in his hand earlier in the day, Victoria police reported.

South Side Only

No Reprieve; Trees to Die

Death sentence for all trees on the south side of Begbie between Belmont and Fernwood was upheld Tuesday by Victoria's public works committee.

As the final appeal to save the trees was heard by the committee, aldermen were told that nothing could be changed regardless of the outcome since council had already approved felling of the trees.

Approval came last Thursday, but at that time, Ald. Clyde Savage insisted that public works committee take one final look at the matter and consider possible alternatives.

Council, however, did not issue an order to halt plans for its Johnson-Begbie-Shelbourne extension project which necessitated removal of the trees on Begbie.

City Engineer James Garnett told the committee there were only two alternatives. Either to cut down the trees on both sides which would enable the city not to encroach on Stadacona Park, or save the trees on the south side by incorporating 10 feet of the park in the road-widening project.

Following a brief but hard-hitting discussion, committee decided to back council's decision to save the trees on one side and encroach on the park.

The Johnson-Begbie-Shelbourne extension is part of the city's five-year capital budget program approved by ratepayers in April.

Begbie Street residents have tried in vain to save the trees, although they submitted several alternatives to council which were ruled out as unfeasible.

'Railroading' Charged

Inner Harbor Proposal Survives Council Row

By HUBERT BEYER

A decision of Victoria city council Tuesday to speed up the Inner Harbor urban renewal plans threatened to break up in complete chaos several times when aldermen were accused of "railroading and ramming the matter through."

The special meeting, which had been called to make Premier Bennett a freeman of the city, was almost over when Ald. Percy Frampton moved that council adopt a report submitted by City Manager Dennis Young to a Group B committee meeting minutes earlier.

The report gives an interim outline of the situation regarding the city's urban renewal plans at Wharf Street.

Here are the report's recommendations which were accepted by council:

- Submissions to the provincial and federal governments regarding the city's urban renewal plans will be completed as soon as possible.
- The city solicitor will be instructed to prepare amendments to the zoning bylaws governing the area enabling the city to exercise tighter control over any development.
- Mayor Courtney Haddock and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, accompanied by other city and provincial officials, will meet with Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, in Ottawa Sept. 8, to discuss details of the city's plans.

The mayor told council if the city wants to revitalize the Inner Harbor area, it must act soon.

One of the prospective developers, he said, had told him time was running out. J. A. Reid of Reid Properties Ltd., a Vancouver-based firm which has proposed a $25 million project below Bastion Square, couldn't hold on to its plans much longer.

Ald Peter Pollen objected to the speed with which the matter was pursued. He said council should take a second look at the entire proposal.

"As chairman of the community development committee — at least I believe I'm chairman, sometimes I have my doubts — I am not entirely convinced that the Reid project is very desirable in the area," Pollen said.

"I protest this ramming and railroading of a matter that can wait for a little while longer. We'll still be building in a hundred years. Why this sudden urge to push this thing through?"

When council insisted that a vote be taken, Pollen questioned Ald. Harold Olafson's right to be present. He told council Olafson owned property in the Inner Harbor area and would therefore be disqualified to vote on the motion.

While aldermen shouted back and forth, Olafson told council he would gladly explain the situation.

"Since I'm asked in open council, I'll be only too happy to tell you that I own four and a half lots near Bapco Paint. That's nowhere near the area we are talking about," he said.

Pollen insisted that council was about to take a vote on a matter relating to the Inner Harbor, and since Olafson's property was located in the Inner Harbor area, he couldn't vote on the motion.

"I dont' want to be misunderstood. I'm not questioning Ald. Olafson's integrity, but I'm objecting to the manner in which this matter is rammed through," Pollen said.

The only other aldermen siding with Pollen was Tom Christie. He said he hadn't been at Tuesday morning's committee meeting and didn't know what Young's report was all about.

This is idiotic nonsense. How can I be expected to vote on something I haven't had a chance to study? Why can't this wait until the next regular council meeting?" Christie asked.

Pollen and Christie voted against the motion to accept Young's recommendations contained in the report.

The area designated by the city as an urban renewal district consists of approximately 55 acres adjoining the proposed Reid development. One of the key factors in the scheme is the acquisition of the Ocean Cement plant which is under negotiation now.

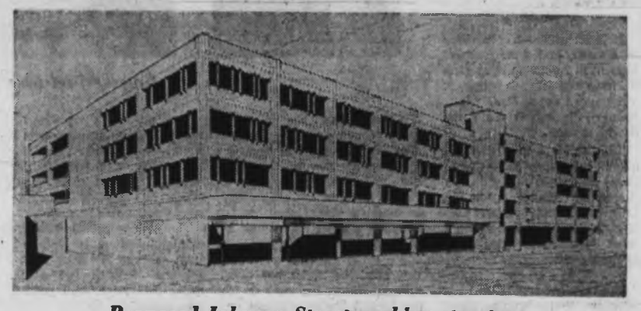

The city hopes to generate private development by taking the first step in upgrading the Inner Harbor district.

To accomplish this, the city plans to replace existing industries with recreational facilities, increase accessibility to the waterfront and withdraw industrial zoning privileges from the area.

The initial step is to buy the Ocean Cement site under the urban renewal scheme. If Ottawa agrees to this plan, the city would have to pay only 25 per cent of the purchase price, while the province underwrites another 25 per cent of the cost, the remaining 50 per cent would be paid by Ottawa.

Funds for the scheme were approved by Victoria ratepayers in the April capital budget which contained $850,000 for the beautification of the Inner Harbor.

Proposed Johnson Street parking structure

Public Works Approves

Johnson Parkade Weathers Attack

In spite of sharp criticism levelled Tuesday by downtown merchants and Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen against the design of the proposed Johnson Street parking structure, the city's public works committee recommended to council that the scheme be adopted.

If approved by council the new parking facility will be built on the north side of Johnson between Blanshard and Douglas. It will provide 400 parking spaces.

Estimated to cost approximately $750,000, the building will be financed under a local improvement scheme.

When colored drawings of the structure were submitted to the committee, Pollen said the design was esthetically not as acceptable as it could be.

Jack Lacterman, past president of the 700-Block Yates Street Association, told the committee he was very disappointed with the design.

He objected to the "unimaginative front" of the proposed parking facility. At least the openings should be covered by screens, he said.

Plans call for the location of six stores in the building, but to allow smooth flow of parking traffic, the stores would have a depth of only 15 feet, committee was told.

Lacterman said this wasn't enough. No store could be economically operated if it was only 15 feet deep.

R. W. Siddall of Siddall, Dennis and Warner, a Victoria firm of architects which prepared the drawings, said the structure was functional which was the most important thing.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay said, "If we keep hashing this thing over, we'll never get anything done. There are 27 people here, and there are 27 different opinions," Ramsay said.

The parking facility is the first of several projects designed to provide an additional 646 parking spaces downtown.

Following construction of the Johnson Street structure, an additional 150 spaces will be provided in the existing View Street parkade and more parking spaces in the Yates Street building will be constructed next year.

Although the money for the projects will be borrowed by the city, the venture is underwritten by the property owners of the area who approved a $1.5 million expenditure in a special area referendum in April.

A special five-mill levy will be imposed on participating property owners to pay the debt charges and annual operating expenses.

The two existing parking buildings on View and Yates were built and financed under the same scheme and are self-supporting in the meantime. Revenue from the garages is enough to pay the annual debt charges and operating costs.

Missing Money Returned

Thanks to a story in The Daily Colonist, a 23-year-old Cobble Hill man has his $224 back.

The story last Saturday said Lucien Theberge lost the money — two weeks' pay—while he and his family were swimming the day before at Gorge Kinsmem Park in Esquimalt. It also contained a plea for public help and a phone number of a Theberge relative.

The family disclosed Tuesday that a woman phoned Monday night to say she had found the money at the park last Friday. Because she was going up-Island for the weekend, she put it in her bank account.

A friend told the woman Monday about the story and the money was returned to Theberge soon after. He gave the woman a reward.

'Refugee' Brides

Just Like Cinderella

By VICTOR WALKER

ATHENS (CNS)—Most Greek schools start their long vacation around the end of June, but there's one that never closes. It's the most unusual of them all. It turns out brides for export.

It was set up to help keep the Greeks of Australia happy, and so far all its graduates have gone to that country. But its doors are open—on a paying basis—to girls bound for any of the Greek communities abroad.

Attendance is compulsory and free for girls going to Australia as unsponsored migrants on assisted passages, and in the last eight years more than 2,000 have taken the course and been flown out to Sydney in "bridal planeloads" of 50 or 60.

The school is run by the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM), and occupies a decaying mansion on the outskirts of Athens that once was the home of a president of a Greek republic. It is said by ICEM to be unique in Europe, and "probably" the only one in the world.

It is an offshoot of poverty in Greece, and a shortage of women in Australia. The girls all have one thing in common. They are, says Mrs. Mary Renieri, "refugees from the dowry system."

Mrs. Renieri is a 45-year-old Greek from Egypt who came to bride training from a career in luxury hotels in Cairo and Alexandria and who is now among this country's most passionate crusaders against the dowry.

She says of her pupils: "It's poverty that brings them here. That and the dowry—'I love you and would die for you, but first tell me how much you are worth'."

A girl with little or no dowry in Greece, especially if she comes from the villages, is in danger of being "married off" by her parents to the first man willing to take her—or of never getting married at all. For her, migration to one of the Greek communities abroad represents a more equal chance in life.

★ ★ ★

If she can make her own arrangements, she may go to the United States, Canada or South Africa. If she is a Cinderella with no one abroad, Australia steps in as Fairy Godmother, with Mrs. Renieri applying the magic wand.

Course includes kitchen lectures

The girls are mostly between 18 and 22, although 35 is the upper age limit for acceptance. "Intake Day," for a batch of from 30 to 50, is every two months, and lessons start the same day.

The course begins with the elementaries of life abroad. Like taking a daily bath, shaving beneath the arms, using deodorant, and getting undressed at night.

Mrs. Renieri explains: "Many village girls, particularly those from the plain of Thessaly for some reason, like to sleep in their clothes. When we tell them to get undressed they try to fool us. They take off their pullovers, but put their nightgowns on top of everything else."

That kind of thing, they are told, would not be understood in other countries.

★ ★ ★

During the two months of the course, they are introduced to some of the more esoteric mysteries of developed societies, such as washing machines, electric cookers and irons, sewing machines and fully equipped bathrooms. They learn to run a house of more than one room, and a kitchen stocked with more than beans and the produce of the vegetable patch.

★ ★ ★

They have a crash course in basic English, learn how to answer a telephone ("You say, 'Hello,' not, 'Here I am, please,' and there's no need to shout."), have a weekly lesson in the heritage of their own country to help them preserve a sense of identity during acclimatization and are familiarized with some of the simpler machinery of the type they may expect to meet in light industries abroad.

Furry Furor

Skin Ban Bares Garment Dilemma

NEW YORK (AP) — As the Sept. 1 deadline approaches banning the manufacture and sale in New York state of clothing from the pelts of endangered species, a furore over the law establishing the ban is unfolding.

Unionists are siding with conservationists, manufacturers are filing court challenges and retailers are holding sales on the items.

The union representing most of the fur workers in the United States, the Furriers Joint Council, reached an agreement Monday with the World Wildlife Fund to "no longer cut, fashion or fabricate skins" of such endangered species as leopards, cheetahs, ocelots and jaguars.

The joint council is affiliated with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen of North America. Together, the two represent 11,000 workers who treat, fashion and make pelts for the garment industry.

Meanwhile, a Brockton, Mass., firm filed a suit in U.S. district court challenging the constitutionality of the law.

Palladio, Inc., which said it did $500,000 worth of business in crocodile and alligator shoes last year, said only two of the 24 species cited in the state law are on the federal list of endangered species.

A Syracuse-based firm — A. E. Nettleton Co. — had filed an earlier court challenge in state Supreme Court.

Food, Food Everywhere

They have quintuplets who will turn six months old Aug. 24, so that works out to about 11.42 diapers each a day. The Kienasts are not too concerned, since a diaper service provides the diapers.

But food is a different problem for the parents from Liberty Corner, N.J. The food comes free — formula and pure foods by the case — but storage creates trouble. Every cupboard in the Kienast kitchen and half of a double wall oven are full of baby food. They put the excess in a dilapidated barn.

The tots still are in cribs, but they are beginning to get active. They squirm and turn over in their beds and it shouldn't be long before they're all over the Kienast's 68-year-old renovated farmhouse.

The Kienasts have two older children — Meg. 4, and John, 19 months. Mrs. Kienast was asked the obvious question and answered, "No, we don't want any more children."

Two of the three girls — Abigail and Sara — are showing signs of teething. Their mother uses a "touch of bourbon" to soothe their gums. There is another girl, Amy, and two boys, William Gordon Jr. and Ted. They range from 10 pounds, 13 ounces, to 15 pounds 6.

The quints are all healthy, and even though they are still in their cribs, Mrs. Kienast admits, "We're a lot busier than we were before."

...And She Died Trying

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Mrs. Robert Fowler had a life's ambition — to climb to the top of each of Colorado's 14,000-foot mountain peaks by her 40th birthday.

The mother of seven had planned to complete the task on her birthday today by hiking to the top of 14,110-foot Pikes Peak. Her family was to have made the trip with her to celebrate the occasion.

The Denver housewife — with only Pikes Peak left was descending 14,014-foot north Maroon Bell peak Saturday when a boulder came loose and knocked her more than 600 feet down the mountain side. She was killed instantly.

★ ★ ★

A companion, Colorado conservationist Edward Hobbs Hilliard Jr., also fell to his death. Two other members of the climbing party, Rodney Aller and his son, Rodney Jr., of Lake Hill, Conn., were not injured.

A rescue team brought the bodies down Monday after a two-day effort to reach the rugged site near the peak and back down again.

★ ★ ★

Friends said Mrs. Fowler had climbed Kit Carson peak Friday and had left the Maroon Bell climb until next to last because she disliked the prospect of the peak's loose gravel fields.

Pikes Peak was to be last because it could be easily climbed by members of her birthday party.

Girls Talking Themselves Out of Job

SOUTHEND, England (UPI) — Girl speech therapists are talking themselves out of jobs and into marriage, according to Dr. Gerald Griffin, Southend health officer.

He said female speech therapists were in short supply because their demure, nicely modulated voices make them particularly sought after by young bachelors.

Girl Customers Offered Instant Romance

LONDON (Reuters) — A Carnaby Street boutique is offering a free man to every free-spending girl customer.

The boutique is promising a free blind date — matched by computer — to any girl spending more than $25.

And the offer goes for married women as well. Owner Harry Fox explained: "We'll be handing out the computer dating forms to every girl, whether she's got a ring on her finger or not. Then it's up to her whether she takes it up."

Instants Threaten Industry's Stability

Tempest Brews in Coffee Pot

By WILLIAM WRIGHT

LONDON (UPI) — American poet Berton Braley wrote in 1935 he could do without all worldly pleasures. But he added:

"My freedom and my courage die aborning,
And I wonder in a coma,
If I miss the fresh aroma
Of a fragrant cup of coffee
in the morning."

Much of mankind still shares Braley's addiction for the brew, but has turned to the instant variety to an extent that threatens to undermine the stability of the second most heavily traded commodity in the world after petroleum.

The 62 member-nations of the International Coffee Agreement convene a two-week meeting in London Monday, uncertain of America's continued participation in the pact, which supports the economies of the coffee-producing nations of Latin America, Africa and Asia.

The ways and means committee of the U.S. House of Representatives has threatened to block congressional renewal of legislation that allows the U.S. to participate effectively in the agreement.

Committee chairman Wilbur Mills (D—Ark.), has warned the Nixon administration that unless a dispute between the U.S. and Brazil over instant coffee is resolved quickly his committee is unlikely to recommend renewal of the legislation, which expires Sept. 30.

The coffee agreement expires in 1973. But without the participation of the U.S., the world's largest coffee importing country, the pact would collapse.

The dispute is the latest turbulence to swirl around coffee since an Arabian goat herd named Kaldi discovered it in 850 A.D., chewing himself into a fit of exhilaration on a handful of coffee beans.

American colonists drank it at the Boston tea party as an anti-British gesture. Plans for the American Revolution were hatched over it. American servicemen drank instant coffee by the gallon in The Second World War and gave it another name: java.

Last year Brazil imposed a 13 cent per pound tax on its instant coffee exports in a move to appease instant coffee processors in the U.S., who claimed the Brazilian product was underselling them on the American market.

The U.S. government, under pressure from American processors, insisted earlier this year that Brazil increase the tax to 17 cents per pound. Brazil refused.

Several American processing firms which have acquired instant coffee plants in Brazil, including Nestle, Hills Brothers and Coca-Cola's Tenco subsidiary, have dropped their demands for a tax increase.

But General Foods, whose Maxwell House brand accounts for half of all instant coffee sold in the United States, has called on the Mills committee to press for a tax increase.

★ ★ ★

Brazilian officials in London who will attend the council meeting said they will resist any attempts by the American delegation to raise the issue during the conference. They said the coffee agreement's machinery for dealing with the dispute has already been exhausted.

U.S. secretary of State William Rogers urged congress to extend the legislation pending a settlement of the dispute.

Rogers said in a letter to congress the collapse of the agreement would be "calamitous for those less developed countries dependent on coffee."

The council will deal mainly with establishing export quotas and price ranges designed to ensure fair prices for exporting and importing countries in the coming coffee year. But these will be largely meaningless without America's continued active participation in the agreement.

Rock Queen's Dream

Warm Bear Rug And Lots Lovin'

By RICK WHITING

HOLLYWOOD (CNS) — Janis Joplin puts on the facade of a gutter-tough street chick who "howls the blues and swills the booze," but after an hour's interview you find her to be a self-confessed lonely, starved-for-attention woman with a heart as large as her ear-to-ear smile.

At 27, at the height of her career, she has been proclaimed the Queen of Rock.

She has had her face on the cover of Time magazine, been written about in major publications, performed at concerts and festivals — including the largest, Woodstock — received a gold record for her album Cheap Thrills and has become the idol of thousands.

Janis greets you with a smile and her trusty companion, Southern Comfort.

She had just completed a cross-country train tour of Canada with Delaney and Bonnie and Friends and the Joe Cocker troupe and she complained of being tired.

"Man, that trip would wear out any women," she said. "I mean two weeks on a train with all those men!"

★ ★ ★

Janis gives the impression that the life of a rock star leaves much to be desired.

She spoke of the many things one must give up — a home, a private life and the normal treatment of others.

Janis said there is a love in her life, a man to whom she dedicates many of her songs.

"There's this one cat," she said, "but he has split for Crete and I'm on the road . . . but that's show business."

When not on the road, Janis lives in Larkspur, Calif., a suburb of San Francisco. She spends about four months of the year there.

"I've got a big bear rug, warmth and plenty of lovin' just waitin' for that man there," she said.

She revealed, in a small way, the way she evolved in the music business. She ran away from her home town, Port Arthur, Tex., at the ages of 14, 16, 17 and 18.

"At 18 I made it," she said, "and I'm glad."

"My music is the most satisfying thing I have," she said. "I just want to have a good time and not lie about it. That's what I call rockin'."

What a trip

Wedding Gift Backfires

LONDON (CP) — One of Sharon Morley's wedding presents caused her a fine of £10 for possessing drugs—a year ago she had been given two LSD tablets and had kept them for sentimental reasons.

Both Agree

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Argentina has become the 24th nation to agree to a UN convention that requires consent of both bride and groom before marriage, a UN spokesman announced.

Double Trouble

Second Dress Passes Muster

ALICANTE, Spain (UPI) — Spanish officials dreamed up a unique fine for a Puerto Rican girl they caught wearing a see-through dress and no bra in this resort city. They assessed her two dresses.

Police described their action against the girl, whose name was withheld, as a "double fine" because they disapproved her first choice.

When they took her to a store and ordered her to buy new attire, they said she emerged from the shop wearing a maxiskirt with a see-through blouse and still no bra.

The officers were undaunted. They ordered her back into the shop to buy a second dress, then allowed her to resume her vacation.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: As a reader who has been annoyed by your strong advocacy of an active sex life as part of every marriage (even in the golden years), it affords me great pleasure to quote to you a REAL authority who does not agree.

Professor John Cuber of the Ohio State University Sociology Department says a sizable percentage of happily married people consider sexual activity either unimportant or a negative matter. Dr. Cuber claims many a marriage starts out with sex a normal part of it, but atrophy sets in, due to pressures on both sides. Women are preoccupied with the rearing of children, domestic help is hard to find, and sheer fatigue erodes the excitement necessary for thorough sexual satisfaction. The husband's business worries diminish his interest in sex simply because he does not have the energy.

Dr. Cuber said many normal people regard sex as a bore and a nuisance, but a necessary evil. He claims a sexless marriage can be very rewarding providing there are other compensations. What do you say to THAT, Ann Landers? — Windy City Reader.

Dear Windy: Thank you for sending on the interesting remarks of Professor Cuber. I am not saying anything until I hear from Mrs. Cuber.

□

Dear Ann Landers: Six months ago our only daughter was married to a fine young man. His parents are socially prominent. We are not. My husband didn't have the opportunity for a college education but he makes a good living and is well respected by everyone who knows him.

His Parents Were Cool

When our daughter was going with Jon' his parents were cool to us. We invited them to our home on two occasions. They accepted our invitations but did not reciprocate. We gave our daughter, (and their son) as nice a wedding as we could afford and encouraged Jon's parents to invite as many relatives and friends as they wished. Their list was noticeably small. They invited only their closest relatives and virtually no friends. We thought this was strange since they know everyone in town.

Now the problem: My husband and I have planned two parties this fall and we are not including Jon's parents. Our daughter is hurt by the attitude of her in-laws but feels if they got to know us better they would like us and be more cordial. I don't want to discuss my feelings with my daughter, but her in-laws have had ample opportunity to get to know us if they wanted to. We don't care to make any further attempts to socialize with them. Are we right to exclude them. — Something Borrowed.

Dear Something: It is obvious that your daughter's in-laws do not consider you and your husband social friends. Invite them to family get-togethers, such as christenings and anniversary parties — affairs which might cause your daughter and her husband embarrassment should his parents not be included. Beyond that — nothing.

Dear Ann Landers: I learned just yesterday that my 13-year-old sister has been showing my letters from a former sweetheart (now in the service) to my current steady. He has been paying her $1 a letter. They do not know I know. What should I do? I am heartsick. — Pensacola.

Dear Pen: Tell your sister you are aware of her rat-fink operation and give your current steady a fast farewell. He's N.G.

Discrimination Weighty Charge

BOSTON (AP) — A stewardess has charged Eastern Airlines with discrimination against women, asserting Eastern stewardesses are afraid to gain as little as one pound above their hiring weight lest they be taken off the payroll.

Bernice Dolan, 37, of Halifax, Mass., an Eastern stewardess for 15 years, was one of a number of women who testified Monday before the Massachusetts commission against discrimination.

She said stewardesses who tend to gain weight are weighed every two weeks by the airline and all are weighed every three months. She contended this was discriminatory because stewardesses are the only Eastern personnel subject to weight regulation.

Weight limits were not listed.

Witchcraft Abortions

VIENNA (AP) — The Hungarian newpaper Esti Hirlap reported that many Hungarian women depend on witchcraft to stop pregnancy despite liberalized abortion laws.

Debts Nearly $1 Million

Eddie's Bankrupt

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Singer Eddie Fisher, a millionaire bobby-sox idol in the 1950s and fall guy in the Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton romance in the 1960s, has begun the third decade of his career with a declaration of bankruptcy.

Fisher, 42, filed a bankruptcy petition in U.S. district court here Monday, claiming debts of $916,300. The petition said his only tangible assets were $40,000 in municipal bonds now held by the Bank of America as security on a loan.

At the height of his career in the 1950s, Fisher earned an estimated $700,000 to $1 million annually from recordings, night club acts and his own television shows and was married to actress Debbie Reynolds in what was publicized as "the perfect match."

In 1959, he gave up his wife, their two children and much of his popularity in a highly publicized romance with Miss Taylor. She had been widowed the previous year when her third husband, producer Mike Todd, was killed in a plane crash.

The day that Miss Reynolds' divorce of Fisher was decreed in Las Vegas, Nev., Fisher married Miss Taylor. But Burton took her away from him during the filming of Cleopatra in Rome three years later in 1963. Fisher's career never recovered from the two marital collapses.

Fisher listed an apartment in the plush Isla Verde section of San Juan as his home in filing the petition. He reportedly was in San Juan when the petition was filed, but there were no calls accepted for him at the apartment and a woman entering the apartment Tuesday told a photographer he was not there.

The chief customs agent in San Juan, Jesus Martinez, said Fisher arrived in San Juan last Friday on a flight from Jamaica. During the customs check, he said, a vial of fluid was taken from the singer and is being analyzed. He denied a report published here, however, that his office had requested the U.S. district attorney to prohibit Fisher from leaving the island until the investigation is completed.

"Fisher is free to come and go as he pleases," Martinez said. "There are no charges against him."

Fisher listed 119 creditors in his bankruptcy petition, ranging from Warner Brothers and Paramount Studios to hotels, clothiers, jewelers, florists, attorneys and the federal and state governments. Fisher listed more than $84,000 in federal and state taxes, $93,000 in unsecured loans and $738,000 in other debts.

After the breakup with Miss Taylor and her subsequent marriage to Burton, Fisher dated several actresses and other entertainers, Kim Novak among them, but was never able to rebuild his career.

In October, 1967, singer Connie Stevens bore him a daughter, and she and Fisher announced that they had married but did not say where.

Another daughter was born to Fisher and Miss Stevens in December, 1968, and four months later Fisher and Miss Stevens filed counter suits and were divorced. In addition to the four children he has by Miss Reynolds and Miss Stevens, Fisher and Miss Taylor also adopted a daughter, Lisa Todd.

'People Darn Uptight'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Coco the clown says it's tough nowadays getting people to laugh because life is so grim.

"People are so darn uptight, so tense today," he said, "It is difficult even to make children laugh."

He said he used to be able to get a laugh just by falling down. "But now a man who falls down has social significance."

Coco, with Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey Circus, is the third-generation Coco the clown. His grandfather was the original in Russia during the days of the czar.

"People are different. We used to work in the audience — throwing confetti out of a pail supposedly filled with water. And we had a chap dressed up in a gorilla suit," he said.

"But people sue today. A woman gets a piece of confetti in her eye. Another person claims he is shocked by the fake gorilla. So we don't work in the stands anymore."

Expo Design: Canada Best

OSAKA, Japan (CP) — Canada has won the top architectural award at Expo '70 with its popular pavilion of mirrored outer slopes and spacious timbered interior.

The Architectural Institute of Japan made the announcement in naming winners of its special Expo awards. Czechoslovakia placed second and Switzerland third. Seventy-seven countries participated.

Canada's pavilion also soared ahead of Russia and the United States, welcoming its 20 millionth visitor Tuesday. The Russians have reported they are nearing that figure and the Americans, despite their exhibited moon rock, have reported less than 13.5 million.

Canadian Commissioner General Patrick Reid will receive the architectural prize at award ceremonies at Expo Sept. 4. He expressed delight with "this supreme Japanese accolade," which also is a triumph for the designers, Vancouver architects Erickson-Massey.

The pavilion's 65,000 square feet of mirrors form an open truncated pyramid sloped at 45 degrees. Daily they reflect thousands of Expo visitors and the skies above them, landscaping other pavilions and the fluttering flags of many nations.

Raiders Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie quarterback Ken Stabler fumbled a touchdown, but more than made up for it with three scoring passes as he led the Oakland Raiders to a 30-19 exhibition victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Monday night.

Glowing Color

The perennial border really comes into its own in late August and September, with far more glowing color than you ever get in the early part of the growing season. To ensure that the display will be at its best, though, it will be necessary to get in a few licks of work among these plants.

Better check and see that staking is adequate, for so many of our fall-bloomers are tallish and somewhat top-heavy plants. Examine the ties and add more further up the stem if necessary. With such plants as the taller Michaelmas daisies, try to avoid that horrible bunched-up look, like a sack of flour tied in the middle.

Deadheads should be removed from plants which have finished blooming, but as I pointed out earlier, do not cut away any more of the foliage than is absolutely necessary. Sprinkle a little fertilizer around and between the plants and scratch it in shallowly, and finish off with a light hoeing to destroy and stray weeds and to loosen the soil surface. Keep the hoe blade very shallow to avoid damaging any roots. For his work, around valued plants, I prefer a smallish Dutch or souffle hoe over the conventional swan-neck draw hoe.

A very common fault in dahlias growing in rich soil is a tendency to become over-burdened with an excess of shoot growth in August. You run across this excess bushiness mostly in plants growing from old tubers, and unless some of these shoots are removed, it is unlikely the quality of the blooms will be maintained. Feeding the plants with a soluble fertilizer in water helps some, but cannot counteract completely the adverse effect upon the flowers of overcrowded growth, lack of light and poor air circulation through the plant.

Black currant bushes should be pruned as soon as possible after the last of the fruit has been harvested. This allows plenty of sun and air to enter and ripen the new shoots which will be carrying the crop next year. The pruning technique is very simple — you just cut away nearly all the older shoots to make way for new, young, vigorous stems starting low down on the plant. If you are maintaining a generous mulch of old rotted manure over the roots — this is a must with black currants — there should be plenty of replacement shoots coming up, and there is no need to retain any portions of the bush more than two years old.

In other years I have suggested that an easy way to prune black currants is to combine pruning with harvesting. To harvest, you cut off all the branches laden with fruit, dump them in a clothes basket and carry them in the house, where the berries can be picked off in comfort. By cutting away the fruiting branches and shoots, you are automatically pruning correctly.

While this lazy gardener's method of combining two jobs in one operation works well with my bushes of Boskoop Giant, in which all the fruit ripens at once, it would be wasteful on certain other varieties where ripening — and harvesting — is spread over a period of several weeks. Two or three pickings are required with these kinds.

I have a note in my diary to remind folks who were given a potted cyclamen last Christmas that it is time now to repot the bulb and start it into growth. If you stored the pot in the basement without water, as advised, the old bulb can now be shaken out and repotted in fresh purchased potting soil. Water sparingly until new growth is seen emerging, then resume normal watering.

ARTHUR HOPPE

Don't Be a Quitter!

There are three times of terrible trial in the life of the average man: starting smoking, quitting smoking and quitting quitting smoking.

Despite propaganda to the contrary, starting smoking isn't easy. A man must steel himself to overcome nausea, vertigo, an aching throat, a racking cough and the Cancer Society commercials to learn to inhale properly.

And that's only the beginning. Once the novice has learned to inhale a cigarette, it takes years of painstaking effort before he can build up his consumption — oh, so gradually — to a respectable two packs a day.

As for quitting smoking, enough has been written about the agonies of this ordeal to satisfy the most macabre devotee of horror literature. Suffice it to say that those who have undergone it have a mystic bond similar to that of the survivors of the Bataan Death March.

But by far and away the time that most tries a man's soul is not starting smoking nor quitting smoking, but quitting quitting smoking. Yet almost nothing has been written on the subject.

To fill this crying need, I'm working on a book called, Don't Be a Quitter. Excerpts follow.

There you are. You've been off the filthy weed for a week or a month. The craving is driving you mad. You can't think. You've developed a roll of fat around your waistline and a filthy temper. You're at wit's end.

★ ★ ★

But what can you do? Each day, each hour, a friend, a fellow worker, a loved one, will fiendishly tell you how much they admire your fortitude.

"Golly," they'll say in awe-struck tones, "I never thought you could do it."

In your heart you know how it'll be if you start smoking again. They'll arch their eyebrows, they'll shrug, they'll nod knowingly. "I always knew," they'll whisper to each other, "that he didn't have the will power."

It takes a nobility of soul, a deep well of inner pride, to fly in the face of unanimous public opinion.

The first step is to look at yourself in the mirror, square your shoulders and say out loud: "I WANT to smoke!" Repeat this 100 times a day.

Once you've made this irrevocable decision, plan your campaign carefully. Watch your weight. Try to put on at least 20 more pounds. Keep your temper — keep it going full blast. Kick the dog, shout at the children, snarl at your wife. They'll soon come around to your side.

Read aloud statistics proving obesity causes heart attacks. When you have reduced your wife to tears by some particularly vile remark, announce that you are going to make the supreme sacrifice to save your marriage: you're going to smoke one cigarette each day after dinner.

For you can't quit quitting smoking cold turkey. You must taper up (cq) your consumption gradually. One a day after dinner's fine. (You can smoke the others you need hanging out the bathroom window.) Slowly increase to two, three and four daily in public.

Lose weight. Mellow your disposition. Your friends, fellow workers and loved ones will be delighted by the change in you. Secretly, they'll be rooting for you all the way. In no time, you'll be your old self again — a two-pack-a-day smoker.

All it takes is high resolve, painstaking planning and an indomitable will.

That and an overwhelming death wish.

Marilyn Beck — In Hollywood

Minda's Nearby

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — You think you've got problems? Well, Michael Caine's got frustrations, too. He tells me he's so anxious to play a great lover, "I'd pay them to do the picture if they'd sign me for a romance story." Happily for Michael, his romance frustrations are limited to the professional side. On the personal side, he still has Minda Feliciano right by his side.

★ ★ ★

Joseph Cotten told me last fall that he and wife Patricia Medina were thinking of selling their Pacific Palisades home in suburban L.A. and moving permanently to Europe. Now he has proved a man of his word. The estate has been sold and the Cottens are now looking for a London or Rome townhouse to call home.

★ ★ ★

Jerry Schatzberg, who has been in town putting the final editing touches on the Faye Dunaway starrer, Puzzle of a Downfall Child, has made it clear he doesn't want to talk about Faye, and most particularly won't talk about their one-time engagement.

★ ★ ★

And Julie Christie's certainly in a no-talk mood about the reports that Warren Beatty has flipped out of his skull over authoress Jeanne Rejaunier.

★ ★ ★

Raquel Welch must be planning quite a trip. She was at the Mark Cross shop in Beverly Hills, writing a check for 39 pieces of luggage. Maybe Raquel's trying to get away from the heat of those Myra Breckinridge reviews.

★ ★ ★

Jimmy Farentino and Michele Lee have decided they would like more togetherness in their professional lives. They so completely dug the experience of working together for the first time in their NBC special The First Nine Months, which will air Feb. 24, they're looking for more husband-wife acting opportunities. Don't be surprised if you see Michele paying a guest visit on Jimmy's The Bold Ones series.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Investing? Gambling!

In all the moaning and groaning and gnashing of teeth about the stock market plunge this spring, the only sensible words I heard in the chorus of lament came from Milton Friedman, the arch-conservative economist at the University of Chicago.

Prof. Friedman opined as how the drop in market prices wasn't a bad thing at all, and was probably healthful for the economy. Even though I lost my pittance in the sharp decline, and felt emotionally as well as fiscally bruised, later reflection compelled me to agree.

Most ordinary people who "invest" in the market are not investing at all; they are gambling. They have little notion of what they are doing, and no particular interest in the welfare of any company — except to gain as much as fast as they can.

They contribute nothing toward or national productivity, and will buy any stock that sounds attractive, deserting it as soon as they lose interest (or principal). They are too fickle for a company to rely on, and too impatient to wait for long-term benefits. They are, in short, parasites, predators, plungers and poor saps. Myself included.

There just was no sense to the market in the couple of years preceding the plunge — stock prices bore no relation to reality at all.

An immensely perspicacious economist — whose opinions must be respected, even when his conclusions are rejected — Prof. Friedman, as a doctor of the economy, pulled out the thermometer and found that the patient was suffering from a galloping fever known as "paper profits."

None of the speculators deserved these profits. They had done nothing to earn them; nor were the profits an accurate reflection of economic conditions. The fever was simply a form of greed, not productivity or acumen or any combination of resource and skill.

But if capitalism is to work as it was intended to, and not become an inflated perversion of itself, the individual investor must be prepared to take the long view, to support a company because he thinks it is a sound one, and to stick with his judgment even in reverses. Only in this way can he contribute stability and confidence to the economy, and encourage companies to plan ahead on a rational basis.

The stock market should not be an expensive toy or a roulette wheel; it should not operate for the benefit of rich insiders, but neither should it become a shuttlecock for millions of outsiders who merely want to gamble, grab, and get out. This, basically, is demeaning to the whole economic process, and cheapens rather than enhances the market mechanism; to the final disillusionment of all.

Arthur Treacher isn't the only casualty on the Merv Griffin show, which he left last weekend. A New York report says CBS has fired Treacher and the producer, director and talent booker — all longtime friends of Griffin — in an effort to save the program. Griffin, now even with Dick Cavett in the ratings race and far behind Johnny Carson, still has his show, if not his friends.

My thanks to Graham Boardman for overseeing this space while I was on a brief holiday. Part of the time I was in Calgary, which has only CBC and CTV channels. It's a different world from 10-channel Victoria, and the made-in-Calgary commercials are among the worst I have ever seen.

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Tuesday's answer—The first man in pro football to exceed 10,000 yards in pass catching was No. 13 of the New York Jets, Don Maynard, and most of the passes were thrown by one Joe Namath. The latter is about to appear nude in a movie with Ann-Margret; he's still making passes.

Today's question — We complete the week with culture, as in the game of Who Wrote the Opera? Part one: name the authors of the operas Carmen, Rigoletto, Rienzi, Der Rosenkavalier and Parsifal. A grand group, and the answers Thursday.

Wednesday Highlights

C-5:00 p.m. — Baseball, Montreal at Cincinnati. I didn't know they were playing big league-little league games—2, 6.

C-7:30—Three for Tahiti sounds impressive, but it's just another comedy pilot that didn't make it. You're watching, if you do, because the network and producers are trying to get some money back—4.

C-8:30 — The Boston Pops, with Chet Atkins and music by Copland, Sousa and Bogey—9.

C-10:00—The CBC says To Be Announced, which often turns out to be something good—2, 6.

Wednesday Movies

C-9:00 a.m.—Violent Saturday (first-rate 1955 small-town action), Victor Mature, Ernest Borgnine, Lee Marvin, Steve McNally, many more, and all good. An exciting film that you should see, once — 4.

12:45 noon—Mickey One (1965 suspense, unusual and interesting), Warren Beatty, Hurd Hatfield. An odd time of day to show this, but it's worth the time—6, 8.

5:30 p.m.—Blondie's Anniversary (1948 waste)—12.

6:00—Paris Express (1954 intrigue), Claude Rains, Herbert Lom, Marius Goring. With those three, how can you go wrong?—13.

C-8:30—Two for the Road (good 1967 couple comedy-drama), Albert Finney, Audrey Hepburn. You can see there are several good movies today; this is one—8.

C-9:00—Istanbul Express (trite 1968 intrigue), Gene Barry—7.

● 11:30—Champion (superb 1949 boxing drama), Kirk Douglas, Arthur Kennedy, Ruth Roman, dozens more. The best boxing film by miles and one of the hardest-hitting movies of any kind—7.

12:00—Body and Soul (fairly good 1947 John Garfield boxing drama). Only if you can't get Channel 7—13.

Wednesday Radio

1:15 p.m.—Today's Artist: Larry Adler. With a harmonica, he's a real artist, as anyone who saw Genevieve will testify—CBU-FM (105.7).

8:00—A two-hour special on an International Symposium on Drug Abuse held recently in Ontario—CBU (690).

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

No doubt it must be the hoarding instinct in man — or woman — which makes so many players reluctant to sacrifice a high card in the interest of allowing a greater number of tricks to be won.

For example, you frequently see a defender lead the king from such a combination as K-Q-J-x-x. The other defender turns up with the A-x but is too mean to unblock by playing the ace on the king, and a result the defense gets stymied.

Opening lead: King of clubs

The contract certainly appears well-founded. On the face of it declarer is solid everywhere except in hearts, and it seems he can well afford to concede a heart trick if needs be.

However, after ruffing the club opening declarer lays down the ace of trumps and finds the suit 4-0. If he isn't careful, he soon winds up going down on the hand.

If he draws trumps and then plays the A-K of hearts, he has to use up his last remaining trump to reenter his own hand and force out the queen of hearts. West then canters off with his club winners.

The only completely safe way to land the contract is by means of an extensive unblocking operation. Declarer draws four rounds of trumps all right, but on the fourth one he throws dummy's ace of diamonds.

This frees declarer's K-Q of diamonds, on which the A-K of hearts are discarded.

Now the jack of hearts in led and a trick conceded to the queen, leaving the declarer's hand high.

Half Fees Agreed

DUNCAN — Despite the avowed withdrawal of Cowichan school district from Malaspina College agreement, students from the area will receive the benefits granted to the other participating districts.

That is the word district students who will attend fall classes have received from the college.

Frances Farmer of Lakes Road will be taking first-year general arts.

"Up at the college they say the agreement is still on, and that we pay only one-half the tuition. The papers say that Cowichan district is not in the agreement, although we get the same benefits," she said.

"I will be going into science and will pay $100 a term in tuition and $40 a month living allowance. The college seems to consider Cowichan still in the agreement," he said.

The second-year students also felt that the college considered Cowichan a participating body.

Glen Underwood of Allenby Road completed his first-year general arts and sciences at Malaspina last spring. "As far as I understand, the rates will be the same," he said. "But I have not decided whether or not to go back yet."

Danny Clements of Lee Road was also undecided if he would return for the fall session. "But I understand that we will pay the same tuition this year as we did last year. This would be $100 a term according to a notice which I received from the college."

David Haywood, Cowichan school board chairman, said Tuesday that Cowichan district is "definitely" out of the college plan.

He said the fees are set by the college council and Cowichan district has nothing to do with it.

Chambers Outline Benefits of Bus

Bus service is a matter of the convenience and welfare of the residents of the districts served and not a question of profit or loss to the carriers, according to a brief submitted to the B.C. Public Utilities Commission Tuesday by the Greater Victoria area chambers of commerce.

In the brief, four chambers of commerce — Greater Victoria; Saanich; Central Saanich and Sidney and North Saanich — protested the proposed discontinuation on Sept. 15 of three Saanich Peninsula bus routes by Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd.

* * *

The brief noted that the current franchise does not expire until 1972, according to the agreement with municipal councils.

"A franchise is more than just a contract," the brief stated. "It is a solemn covenant between a public carrier and local municipal government: it is a monopoly that can be granted only if it is in the public interest to do so."

The carrier must operate routes through low as well as high passenger density and the high density routes will subsidize losses from the low density routes.

* * *

"If only high passenger density and hence profitable routes are to be considered, then no franchise, no monopoly, is necessary, and in fact the public may be better served through healthy competition."

The brief calls for denial of the Coach Lines' application.

"Alternatively," it states, "the fullest analysis of the company's operations should be conducted and a public hearing held in this area in conjunction with this analysis to enable both the public and the company to show cause why the existing franchise to provide a public service should be continued or abrogated."

Hospitals Deny Any Problems From BCHIS

Hospital authorities Tuesday denied a New Democratic Party suggestion that a staff squeeze in B.C. Hospital Insurance Service is affecting them.

Dave Barrett, provincial leader of the NDP, earlier made public a memorandum from Donald Cox, deputy minister of hospital insurance, that asked BCHIS division managers to assess their staff complements.

At a press conference, Barrett said the memorandum was further evidence of the government's "deliberate policy of starving health services." He added that Premier Bennett, now in the Okanagan, should at once return to Victoria to put an end to such a policy.

* * *

BCHIS is the government agency that distributes taxpayers' money among hospitals and Cox, as deputy minister, is responsible for implementing the policies enunciated by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Cox said he was surprised that the NDP leader had obtained a copy of a confidential memo that says in part:

"The staff replacement situation is very serious. Until further notice, there is very little hope of replacing a person who leaves our employment for any reason.

* * *

"The only hope lies in securing treasury board approval and I am informed that authorization is being granted only in a few cases of extreme urgency and the highest priority."

The memorandum then went on to ask division managers to re-assess the staffing situation in certain categories.

He explained later that it was important for any organization to do this from time to time so that personnel might be efficiently used. When department heads sit down and look at the duties of their staffs it results in a more efficient operation.

* * *

Duncan Bradford, secretary-manager of the B.C. Hospitals' Association, an organization that represents most of the province's publicly-owned hospitals, said he has heard no complaints that could be related to a staff shortage in BCHIS.

During some past years, BCHIS' monthly payments to hospitals sometimes were delayed, particularly during April and May, but there has been no such delay this year.

"BCHIS is one government department that certainly has not mushroomed out of control. As a matter of fact, its staff growth has been one of the slowest and we have urged BCHIS to hire more people," said Bradford.

* * *

Checks with individual hospitals did not show any complaints about the speed with which BCHIS handles payments or routine correspondence.

While they have complained about the amounts of those payments, they say the money is being received on time and little bank borrowing is necessary to meet such costs as payrolls.

Hospital Board:

Land Owned By Public

By JOHN MATTERS

The Capital Regional Hospital Board will be asked to insist on public ownership of any hospital land bought with taxpayers' money.

The position, which challenges a suggestion from Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, was in the form of a r ecommendation formulated during a meeting Tuesday of the regional hospital executive committee.

The recommendation will be discussed at a meeting of the regional hospital board Aug. 26.

The committee made the suggestion after hearing a letter from the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, which is expected to become legal owner of St. Joseph's.

The society said it was following the advice of Loffmark, who said earlier that regional board should turn over $1.6 million to the society so it, not the board, can purchase the grounds of St. Ann's Academy.

●

The board has argued that since taxpayers' money is involved it should be the owner of any land on which a hospital might be built. (The academy grounds would be used for a 150-bed extended care centre.)

★ ★ ★

The Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society and Loffmark have pointed out that a new section of the provincial Hospitals Act protects the taxpayers' equity in anything that might be owned by the society.

In addition, the committee's advisers pointed out that regional board policy adopted last December will require a ratepayer referendum before the money can be spent for the academy grounds.

The executive committee also decided to ask its board to seek an alternate site for the e x t e n d e d care beds planned at St. Joseph's "in view of the fact that the hospital to this time has not been able to present any concrete evidence that it can build them within provincial guidelines."

Scouts Return from Jamborette

Scotland Unforgettable

A party of 13 Greater Victoria Scouts arrived home late Tuesday loaded with gifts and memories of a trip to Scotland they started on July 19.

The Canadian contingent leader, Des Oswell of 1230 Victoria, Oak Bay, said the Greater Victoria group, with its three leaders, accounted for half of the total Canadian contingent, which attended the 12th Scottish Jamborette at Blair Atholl, north of Perth.

"It was a great success," said Oswell. "The 10-day camp was first class and gave our boys the opportunity of meeting lads from 17 other countries, in what turned out to be surprisingly g o o d weather."

In addition to the Scout camp, the party toured London, Edinburgh, Stratford-on-Avon, and then spent time with Scottish families.

E. R. Bailey, 1055 Trans-Canada Highway, said his son, Gregory, had spent time with a family who kept a pub and had enjoyed learning how the beer business operated. "Greg wrote us he was having a really wonderful time and I'm certain it's an experience he'll never forget."

Hunkin Funeral

Principal Continued 14 Years at Central

Hunkin, who was born in St. Anstell, England, and took his training at Westminster College and London University, came to Vancouver Island in 1911 .

At that time he taught at Cowichan Bend, moving to Cobble Hill the next year and to Victoria in 1913.

Hunkin remained in that position until his retirement in 1951. After his retirement, he continued to teach on a part-time basis at Oak Bay senior high.

Hunkin is survived by his wife, Bessie; a daughter, M r s . G e o r g e (Helena) Buchan, of Vancouver; a brother, Stanley, of Oakland; three grandchildren; and a sister, Marian, and a brother, Howard, in England.

Scotsman Developed Parks

Funeral services will be held in McCall's Chapel at 3:30 p.m. today for former city parks foreman Roderick Mackenzie, 3159 Jackson, who died in Victoria Saturday. He was 90.

Born in Rosshire, Scotland, he lived in Victoria for 65 years and played an important part in the development of city parks.

There's Dancing In Street

The Empress Hotel wants to hold street dances, concerts and sing-along sessions on G o v e r n m e n t Street Sept. 4 and 5, and Victoria's traffic committee gave its blessings Tuesday.

Committee recommended to council that the hotel be permitted to use the street for public entertainment during the two days.

From 1 p.m. until midnight on both days, Government will have to be closed to automobile traffic along the causeway to accommodate the street dances.

Traffic E n g i n e e r Dave Campbell assured committee that traffic could be successfully rerouted without causing too much congestion.

Woman Driver Hurt in Crash

Marian Diakow, 44, of 2049 Church Road, Sooke, is in fair condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with lacerations and internal i n j u r i e s received when the car she was driving was in collision with a car driven by Orr Clements, from New Westminster, at Wharf and Johnson about 9 a.m. Tuesday, Victoria police said.

Ernest Davison

Bindery Was Home

A man who started his career as a book binder with the Daily Colonist in 1910 was buried here Monday.

Victoria native son Ernest Davison, 78, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Aug. 12 after a short illness.

He transferred from The Colonist to the Q u e e n ' s Printer in 1911 where he worked in the bindery until 1923, except for time off for service in the First World War.

From 1923 to 1929 Davison was active in his trade operating a bindery from his home in which all the work including gold foil stamping was done by hand.

He returned to the Queen's Printers in 1929 and worked in the bindery until 1957 when he retired.

He was a member of the Brotherhood of Bookbinders for over 50 years and held a life membership in the Bookbinders International.

★ ★ ★

He is survived by his wife, Kay, at home; sons, Raymond and Melvin, both of Victoria; 10 grandchildren, and sisters, Mrs. Eva Lynn and Mrs. Elsie McIlwaine.

Watch Planned On Rainier

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — A seismograph is to be installed late this month high on the slopes of Mt. Rainier, to keep a constant check on the trembling of the 14,410-foot dormant volcano.

Rainier, which last erupted 120-150 years ago, is jolted by two to 20 microearthquakes daily. That is of import in the light of Japanese studies which show such volcanoes have a large increase in quake activity before erupting.

NDP Bill Scores Asbestos Threat

TORONTO — A New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature has called for laws to protect construction workers using asbestos.

Citing a report which said asbestos dust is a major cause of lung cancer in Ontario, MPP Morton Shulman said it posed a threat to public health "perhaps more serious" than smoking.

The report, prepared by six young researchers in the last four weeks, noted such protective legislation exists in England.

VIENNA — Maximilian Kovacic, 41, an official of the Austrian interior ministry, was arrested on charges of spying for Czechoslovakia. An interior ministry spokesman indicated Kovacic's activities were uncovered by a Czechoslovak agent who defected recently to the west.

VANCOUVER — A 41-year-old man wanted by Ontario Provincial Police in connection with a shooting incident there last month was arrested here. Reginald George Tippin of Guelph, Ont., was picked up shortly after midnight on Granville Street. Police said Tippin was carrying a fully-loaded .22-calibre automatic pistol.

TRAIL — Fifteen men and two private airplanes were rounded up here to search for four boys who disappeared in the mountains, but the boys were only out for a walk. Keith Miggins and John William and Albert Cormier, ranging in age from six to nine, walked 14 miles over a mountain pass from the southeastern British Columbia community to Casino. Then they got a ride back to Trail from a truck driver.

Baby's Father 'Any One Of Five Men'

From AP, UPI

LOS ANGELES — Linda Kasabian said Tuesday that any of five men, including Charles M. Manson, could have fathered her son born last March, but she thinks her husband Robert was the parent because "I saw my husband in my child's face when it was born."

●

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, the state's key witness at the Sharon Tate murder trial, was on the witness stand for the 17th day under redirect cross-examination by the prosecution and re-cross-examination by the defence.

On trial on murder-conspiracy charges in the seven slayings in August, 1969, are Manson, 35, chieftain of a hippie-type family, and three women followers.

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, mother of a two-year-old daughter and a son, Angel, born last March, said Monday she did not report the killings originally because she feared Manson might hurt her daughter.

"Charles Manson could be the father of your child (the son), isn't that true?" asked a defence lawyer.

"He could be, sure," Mrs. Kasabian said. Then she went on to name as other possible fathers her husband and three male members of the Manson family, which she has said she joined in July, 1969.

Judge Charles Older censured one of the defence attorneys at the Tate trial Tuesday for unprofessional conduct and told him he intended to cite him before the California Bar Association.

Ronald Hughes, trying his first case, had told television newsmen Monday that he felt Judge Older was prejudiced in favor of the prosecution in the trial of the members of "the Manson family" for the Tate-LaBianca slayings.

Angela 'Most Wanted'

From LAT, UPI

LOS ANGELES — Angela Davis became the third woman in history Tuesday to be placed on the FBI's list of 10 most-wanted fugitives.

Miss Davis, 26, the ousted University of California at Los Angeles philosophy professor, black militant and avowed communist, is charged with the kidnapping and murder of superior Judge Harold Haley, in San Rafael, Calif., Aug. 7.

She is being sought on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. The FBI said she disappeared after apparently being seen in Birmingham, Ala., last Saturday.

On FBI posters that will be distributed across the country, Miss Davis is described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, 140 pounds, with brown eyes, brown hair and a thin build. She has a brown complexion, occasionally wears "granny-type" glasses and styles her hair in a natural "Afro" fashion. She has been known by the nickname "Tamu."

Marin County, Calif., warrants allege that she bought four of the guns used by an acquaintance, Jonathan P. Jackson, 17, to help three prisoners escape from Haley's courtroom with Haley and four other hostages.

Jackson, Haley and two prisoners were killed in a shootout as the escape vehicle sought to drive away. The third prisoner and two hostages were wounded.

Marin authorities said Miss Davis was wanted as "a principal in the crime," not as a conspirator. Under California law, anyone aiding or abetting in a major crime is equally guilty with direct participants.

Import Quota Scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Asserting he was "shocked and disappointed" by President Nixon's decision to return the present oil import quota system, Sen. Edward Kennedy said Tuesday he will hold Senate hearings on the decision "at the earliest opportunity."

"This decision is a blow to American consumers who pay billions of dollars in higher oil prices each year because of the quota," the Massachusetts Democrat said. He added:

"The American people have the right to know the basis for the administration's sudden decision on oil imports."

By JOHN MATTERS

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark within three days changed his mind and said "no" to the idea of building a new extended care hospital in Saanich, it was learned Tuesday.

The proposal was put to the minister as a possible method of ending controversy over the future development of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The Colonist learned that Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, chairman of the regional hospital board and Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, deputy chairman, saw Loffmark in his office Thursday, July 30.

Curtis pointed out that there was considerable acreage bounded by Admirals Road, Colquitz Creek and the Trans-Canada Highway that already was owned by either B.C. Hydro, the provincial government or Saanich.

The idea was that this site could be obtained at no cost and would be an ideal location for the extended care beds proposed for St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Priory.

The regional representatives said this would be an alternative to spending $1.6 million for the grounds of the present St. Ann's Academy and then put another $1.9 million into the building to house the 150 extended care beds that would adjoin St. Joseph's.

Such a development would have given taxpayers, in the one package, the 75 beds that were planned for St. Mary's Priory.

Bennett Honored Freeman of City

At a special meeting, Victoria city council unanimously passed a resolution bestowing the city's highest honor on the premier.

The resolution stated the award was given to the premier "in recognition of his fine qualities of mind and the eminent public services rendered by him to the citizens of Victoria and the province of British Columbia as a whole."

* * *

A formal ceremony during which Bennett will receive his freeman scroll will be held Oct. 15.

Preparation for Thursday's meeting were made by city hall officials during the past few weeks. The matter was shrouded in secrecy usually preserved for important property acquisition matters.

Mayor Courtney Haddock told the meeting this was the first time any Canadian premier had become freeman of any capital city.

"The premier will have the right to vote in the city of Victoria, and we hope he will take advantage of that privilege," the mayor said.

The formal ceremony, he said, would be an outstanding event for Victoria. Some details, however, still needed more consideration.

"Frankly, we had a little

Does Council Realize Implications?

So the city of Victoria has honored another distinguished person with the highest award it can bestow, but has council considered all the possible implications?

- He may run as mayor or alderman without being a property owner in the city of Victoria.
- He can cast his vote in any civic election and vote on any money bylaw.
- He is allowed to march through the city with fixed bayonet and colors flying.

Who is to say that Premier Bennett won't run as mayor of Victoria in the next election and turn up at the polling station with a fixed bayonet to vote for himself?

In those days, a freeman pretty well ran the municipality in which he enjoyed his status.

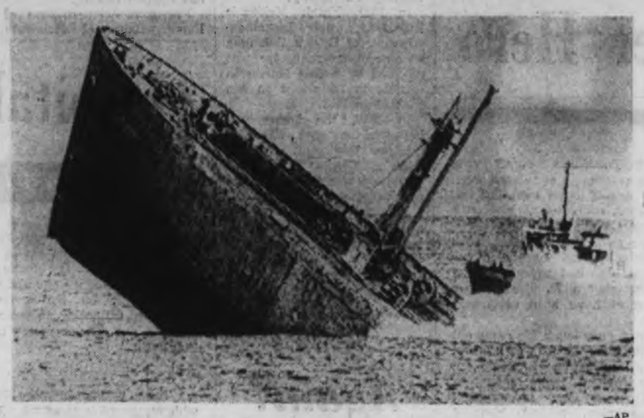

He was a man of great power in charge of trading, exempted from tax. He and his fellow freemen were the exclusive electorate exercising a vast influence in local government and parliamentary elections.

* * *

The freemen's wings were somewhat clipped by the Municipal Corporations Act proclaimed in 1835. In 1882, the act was amended further reducing the freemen's powers.

Never Again! U.S. Pledges

ABOARD USS HARTLEY (UPI) — With a navy patrol plane taking photographs for proof, a rusting Liberty ship carrying 67 tons of nerve gas slipped beneath the waves with a huge splash and sank to the bottom of the Atlantic Tuesday. The United States assured the world it would never again dump chemical weapons in the sea.

The SS Lebaron Russell Briggs, its hold flooded with water, plunged straight down in a charted munitions dump area 282 miles off Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 1:53 p.m. PDT, about four hours after seacocks and valves were opened.

* * *

The stern submerged first, sending a spray of water 40 or 50 feet into the air, before the 26-year-old vessel sank three miles and hit the ocean floor eight minutes later.

Perhaps because of water pressure or the jolt of the impact, four water collection bottles for gas leak tests rose to the surface two hours too soon. Others were to be released automatically over eight hours.

No leaks of poisonous gas or any other hitches were detected at the end of a controversial journey that began early last week by train from army arsenals in Kentucky and Alabama.

* * *

Hundreds Die

Rain Falls Too Late In Yemen

CAIRO (UPI) — It rained in Yemen for the first time in three years — but it was too late.

Too late to help the starving population, and too late to save the crops.

The Middle East News Agency said Tuesday a four-hour downpour soaked the parched nation near the tip of the Red Sea on the Arabian Peninsula, but it did not say when.

* * *

Officials in the capital of Sana said it was the first rain in the country for three years, and the heaviest in ten years in a land where summer temperatures reach 113 degrees Farenheit daily.

Medical authorities say 600 persons — and possibly as many as 1,000 — have died of starvation in recent weeks.

Agriculture Minister Mohammed Juneid said Tuesday, "The rain was too late to help the farmers. The planting season has passed without any rainfall and now it's too late and we do not have enough seed."

* * *

International relief agencies' representatives said as many as 1.8 million people are nearing starvation because of the drought. The agencies have begun pouring supplies into the country, now dependent on international help after its fourth disastrous harvest.

A broadcast from Sana, monitored Monday night, said West German planes carrying U.S. food aid had begun arriving regularly at Sana airport. Common Market aid, amounting to 14,000 tons, was due to arrive at the end of this month.

U.S. Observing Egyptian Lines

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States officially disclosed Tuesday it is flying reconnaissance planes over the Suez ceasefire front to watch for violations of the Mideast truce.

"They're flying on the east (Israeli) side of the ceasefire line, said Robert J. McCloskey, state department press officer.

The main object of the surveillance is the Egyptian side of the Suez line. Israel claims Egypt has been building up its missile strength within the 32-mile zone supposed to be at a military standstill, thus breaching the truce which began Aug. 8.

* * *

U.S. sources said the aerial cameras are well able to take photos of the Egyptian zone from the area six miles or more east of the Suez line, where Israeli planes are allowed to fly. The U.S. officials contend their air intelligence is better than Israel's.

A long-awaited state department statement giving the U.S. conclusions about the Israeli complaints now is in final stages of preparation.

The U.S. conclusions were given to Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin by Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisko, officials said. Rabin arranged to fly back to Israel at once.

* * *

McCloskey refused to tell U.S. reporters such details as the type of plane involved in the reconnaissance missions or where the aircraft are based. He did say the Egyptians have been advised of the flights.

At the United Nations, a spokesman said Tuesday Israel has made its third complaint to the United Nations about the alleged movement of Egyptian missile launchers closer to the Suez Canal in violation of the ceasefire.

Israel again delayed Tuesday the nomination of its

Full Report Study Urged By Labor, Management

● Trudeau's threatened postal crunch just around corner? Page 19

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Leslie Peterson Tuesday urged labor and management in all sectors of the British Columbia economy to take "a long hard look" at a report on strife in the forest industry before they consider strikes or lockouts.

Peterson made the request after releasing the 28-page report by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz. The B.C. Appeals Court judge was appointed special mediator July 7, following breakdowns in negotiations between the International Woodworkers of America, representing 28,000 workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agent for 116 coastal companies.

* * *

The report recommends a nine-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year contract, resulting in a 60-cent increase in hourly rates, with an additional 30 cents for tradesmen.

The union originally asked for a $1 increase in one year on base rates ranging from $3.12 to $4.80. The average rate now is $3.54.

If approved, the proposed contract will be effective from June 1970 to June 1972.

Peterson said he had no hesitation in calling on the IWA and FIR to accept the "generous but realistic" recommendations of the Nemetz report. It would be "unthinkable" for any work stoppage to occur in the coast forest industry, he said.

* * *

He also hoped the report would mark "the beginning of the end of an extremely difficult summer in industrial relations in B.C."

There was no comment from presidents of Vancouver Island locals of the IWA. The representatives are still meeting in Vancouver to discuss the report and a spokesman said it would "some days" before a comment would be made.

Other recommendations in the report:

- Appointment for a three-year term of an arbitrator to settle grievances arising from the master agreement, in an effort to head off wildcat strikes;
- A one-half-per-cent increase in vacation pay for employees with one to four years' service;
- An urgent call for a

Three Die in Dogfight As Fokker Hits Copter

DUBLIN (CP) — Two aircraft being used in the filming of a simulated dogfight for a movie about the First World War crashed near here Tuesday, killing at least three persons.

Police identified the dead as cameraman Skeets Kelly and director Burch Williams, both Americans, and Gilbert Ghoman of France.

The victims were in a helicopter, piloted by Ghoman, filming the dogfight scene when the craft crashed with a German Fokker biplane. Both aircraft plummeted into the Irish Sea over Wicklow Harbor, 20 miles south of Dublin.

A fourth man was reported missing. He was identified as James Liddy, a senior pilot of the Irish army air corps, who was piloting the Fokker.

Both machines plunged into the sea and sank immediately.

Several dummy runs were made over the picturesque bay before Liddy's plane came in on a double loop and struck the hovering helicopter.

Freed Lion Turns First On Door-Opening Owner

HALMSTAD, Sweden (UPI) — A self-styled animal psychiatrist who threatened to let his lion loose if he was not granted permission to open a local zoo, carried out his threat Tuesday. But he was severely clawed and bitten himself, police said.

The man, identified as Goesta Backer of Steninge outside this southern town, opened the lion cage in his garden when he was informed by local health authorities that his application had been turned down.

Minutes later he was attacked by the lion and severely clawed and bitten, police said.

He managed to call for an ambulance in his house "but rescuers could not get him out as the lion trotted around in the garden," police said.

Despite his injuries, Backer tried to lure the lion back into the cage but failed and was attacked again.

Finally he managed to crawl out of the garden and police sharpshooters moved in and killed the animal, the spokesman said.

Police said they did not know why his application had been turned down but added that authorities "for several years had been trying to get rid of the animal."

Sawmill Seemed 'Natural' to Him

By ELIZABETH DUNN

COBBLE HILL — A sawmill is hardly a typical hobby, but then Fernand Deloume is hardly a typical mill worker.

The 57-year-old physicist is a University of Victoria mathematics professor. Come summer and Deloume is off to his private toy — a custom sawmill deep in the woods of Cobble Hill. He has had a lifelong interest in the lumber industry.

"When I graduated from normal school in 1932, there were very few teaching positions available," he said. "I did what seemed natural. My father was a mill wright, and I began working on a mill on my uncle's land here in Cobble Hill."

The sawmill took a back seat for several years while Deloume continued his education. He received a master's degree in Toronto and a physics doctorate in California.

"I returned to Canada in 1960 and began teaching at the University of Victoria. In 1962 I started up the mill again to get the lumber to build a home in Gordon Head for my family."

The Gordon Head house was not the first built by Deloume. "I have built about 33 houses — I am a professional engineer and do a lot of consulting work." It proved, however, to be the launching pad for the present mill.

★ ★ ★

It isn't really a plaything; Deloume plans to install an eight-foot band saw in the next two years. This would be one foot larger than the seven-foot band saw used by B.C. Forest Products. He is constantly adding to an already large equipment supply.

"I have my pilot's licence but haven't flown much lately. I traded by plane for a tractor for the mill.

"The mill is completely self-sufficient, as we generate our own electricity. We do not have enough wood on this land to mill, but at the moment this is not a problem as we are custom sawing," he explained. "This means the customer brings his own wood."

Customer shortage is one problem Deloume has never faced. "we have never advertised, but right now there is so much work here that we have a waiting list. Some days we even close the gate to keep people out, but they just walk in and park their cars outside the gate."

With the help of his son John, 16, and his daughter, Wendy, 13, Deloume runs the mill.

"John does the work of a man here. But most importantly, I find it is also a good chance to be with him."

Summer togetherness is one of the major attractions for the father-son team. John said: "As soon as school got out, I started working here. We work every day, although the hours vary each day. The work is fun, though; I enjoy doing it.

"We have a coffee break whenever one of the machines breaks down, but now he has them working so well that they hardly ever break down," John said.

Deloume finds that in spite of the hard manual labor, "I can relax here." Although he looks forward to his retirement from teaching he concluded, "I can never see the day when I am not working in some phase of the lumber industry."

Half Fees Agreed

DUNCAN — Despite the avowed withdrawal of Cowichan school district from Malaspina College agreement, students from the area will receive the benefits granted to the other participating districts.

That is the word district students who will attend fall classes have received from the college.

Frances Farmer of Lakes Road will be taking first-year general arts.

"Up at the college they say the agreement is still on, and that we pay only one-half the tuition. The papers say that Cowichan district is not in the agreement, although we get the same benefits," she said.

"I will be going into science and will pay $100 a term in tuition and $40 a month living allowance. The college seems to consider Cowichan still in the agreement," he said.

The second-year students also felt that the college considered Cowichan a participating body.

Glen Underwood of Allenby Road completed his first-year general arts and sciences at Malaspina last spring. "As far as I understand, the rates will be the same," he said. "But I have not decided whether or not to go back yet."

Danny Clements of Lee Road was also undecided if he would return for the fall session. "But I understand that we will pay the same tuition this year as we did last year. This would be $100 a term according to a notice which I received from the college."

David Haywood, Cowichan school board chairman, said Tuesday that Cowichan district is "definitely" out of the college plan.

He said the fees are set by the college council and Cowichan district has nothing to do with it.

Travellers Find Treat From Club

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — Nanaimo's best tourist offerings and a few extras have been treats for three touring families this month.

They have been chosen in the annual summer Tourist of the Week program co-ordinated by Nanaimo Jaycees.

Sheldon Smith, co-ordinator with Chuck Constable of the program, said it promotes tourism and gets Jaycees together in the summer when they have no meetings.

The usual first response is one of suspicion, Smith said. They think at first its going to cost them something.

Contact is made usually at the Tourist Bureau, although the first couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson of Dryden, Ont., was approached at Ivy Green Park, where they were camping.

All are given a tour of the Bastion, Centennial Museum and city hall, where they are shown around by Mayor Frank Ney or Ald. Ken Medland, deputy mayor this month.

Cannery Tour Made

The second week, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Nelson and their daughter, Lori, of Tujunga, Calif., were chosen, and last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Solberg of Wheaton, Minn., were shown around.

Each tour includes a visit to Armand St. Jean's cannery on Stewart Avenue and a Sunday morning fishing trip with Bob Dudley.

The tourists are also included in any Jaycee activities.

The Andersons attended a cocktail party with the group, the Nelsons caught a Jaycee beach party at Departure Bay, and the Solbergs went to a party at the home of Jaycee president Ron Biggs.

Smith said this way the visitors can meet local people more easily and get to know the town better.

The program has been going on for more than 10 years, Smith said, and every year Jaycees receive Christmas cards and letters from visitors who have been chosen in previous years.

It is also a means of liaison with Jaycee groups in all parts of the continent as the Tourists of the Week are asked to contact their local Jaycees and bring them greetings from Nanaimo.

Impaired Drivers Decline

COURTENAY — Courtenay RCMP say that since validation of the breath analysis law, the number of drivers charged with impaired driving has been drastically reduced.

Constable S. E. Stark, in charge of Courtenay highway patrol, made the comparison Monday. At the same time he issued accident figures for June.

Speeding continues to be the leading cause of accidents, with 84 listed under this category. Dangerous and careless driving accounted for 49 accidents, 40 were caused by drivers failing to yield the right of way and eight were caused by driver impairment. Liquor was involved in 44 accidents.

★ ★ ★

The amount of personal injury and property damage, compared to the same period last year, showed a slight decline.

Norman Barry Woods, 21, of Courtenay, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving, RCMP said he went through radar north of the city, was followed and clocked at 95 miles an hour in a 50 zone. Judge John Ryland told the man, "there is no justification for driving at a speed of 95."

Failing to remain at the scene of an accident cost Patrick Landroche, 20, of Comox the same fine and suspension after he pleaded guilty.

RCMP said the man went through an intersection and collided with another car, then continued without stopping. Landroche said he phoned the police station after the accident, but there was no record of the call. He said he had witnesses to the phone call.

Asked why he had not stopped after the accident, the accused replied, "I guess I just panicked."

Police said he was noticed driving at 55 to 60 in a 30 zone. He had an alcohol level of .16 per cent.

Deadhead Collision

Fishermen Rescued

COWICHAN BAY — Two sports fishermen escaped unharmed Tuesday when their 14-foot glass fibre boat struck a deadhead and threw them overboard.

Dolph Holman and his nephew, John Holman, both of Cowichan Bay, were fishing in the bay when the accident happened.

After they were spilled, the boat, powered by a 20 horsepower outboard, began to circle, and the propeller cut one of the [illegible]

Gordon Price of Pier 66, Cowichan Bay, had his own boat slightly damaged when he attempted to stop the runaway craft.

After two hours the driverless boat came to a halt when the motor ran out of gas. Holman and his nephew, who had been standing by, quickly boarded their vessel and plugged the draining hole which John had opened before the mishap occurred.

SPEC Sets Clean-Ups

DUNCAN — Cowichan-Malahat chapter of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control will conduct a general clean-up day Aug. 30, said Kurt Horn, local president .

Co-ordinator will be Jack McIsaac. Horn said the clean-up will coincide with a visit by SPEC ecology caravan to Duncan, Aug. 30 and 31. The caravan will display films, slides, pamphlets and theatrical presentations.

"We have been assured of support from various groups and organizations, as well as from our members, and we hope to cover a large part of the area. The Royal Canadian Legion branch at Duncan has made their hall and grounds available to us, and that will be the focal point both for the caravan and litter collection," Horn said.

Duncan and North Cowichan municipality have both been asked for use of a truck.

Horn said the caravan is a modified school bus powered by propane gas, and it has been the focus for many environmental activities in various communities.

"The caravan is talking about the environment in several ways to bring together and to start people thinking and talking about the environment and its rapid destruction," Horn said.

Motorists Sentenced

CHEMAINUS — Joseph Wayne Mills, 18, of Victoria was fined $350 after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. His licence was suspended for three months. He had been checked by police on the Trans-Canada Highway early Saturday.

Joseph Michael Shelling, 23, of Chemainus was fined $300 and had his licence suspended for 60 days after he pleaded guilty to a similiar offence. He was checked early Sunday on the Chemainus Road at Chemainus.

Kennely Lamont Johnston, 22, of Chemainus, was assessed $300 and his licence was suspended for three months after pleading guilty to impaired driving. He was picked up by police at his driveway early Tuesday after he tried to evade the police.

Pat Bay Highway

Lake Fill In Offing?

DON GAIN

Widening of the Patricia Bay Highway to four lanes along the eastern shore of Elk Lake will require filling a part of the lake, it was indicated Monday night.

But Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said the proposal sounded worse than it actually is.

* * *

"I am making council aware of it at our in-camera session after the regular council meeting tonight," he said Monday. "I believe there is an opportunity here to make changes that will be beneficial, but I can't say anything more about it at this time."

He said he had been invited to the office of Deputy Highways Minister H. T. Miard last week along with Cecil Parrott, chairman of the regional district parks committee, Saanich engineer Neville Life and Tony Roberts, director of planning for the Capital Regional Board.

He said he understood some trees would be removed and some fill would be put in the lake, "but the proposal sounds worse than it actually is."

In the Saanich Chamber of Commerce letter to the highway minister, President John Hicks asked if it was the intention of the highways department to dump fill into the lake for at least 40 to 50 feet and to remove all trees on the east side of the lake to provide the necessary width for additional lanes.

* * *

"If you confirm," he wrote, "will you kindly advise if it is the intention of your department to 1, provide beach and swimming areas to replace those destroyed by the highway widening or 2, provide access roads to the lake and 3, plant trees or otherwise landscape the area adjacent to the lake?"

Hicks referred to a statement by the highways minister last February that no property would be taken on the shore side of the highway for purposes of widening.

Board Rejects School Test Of Fluorides

The Greater Victoria school board decided Monday night not to allow its students to participate in a two-year fluoride testing program.

The project, which would have meant 1,000 students would use classroom time once a day to rinse their mouths out with a fluoride preparation that is being tested for its decay-preventing potential, would have been done with material supplied by the Warner-Lambert Research Institute.

* * *

"I think we're being dupes if we go along with this," said trustee Allan McKinnon. "There's an ulterior motive to it every time."

"I think this was jammed down our throats at very short notice," said trustee Peter Bunn. "I think this could easily lead to gimmicky things such as we see on television. This has no place in our schools."

"Maybe if they offered to build us a new Vic West school," said McKinnon, "but I wouldn't want to sell out for a toothbrush."

* * *

Some anti-fluoridation material had been sent to the board by the Individual Rights Association of Victoria, but board members did not discuss this aspect of the proposal.

In other business, the board decided it would allow a commercial education program about drugs to be tested on Grade 8 and 9 students at Highrock junior high school this year.

Although the course usually costs more than $4 per unit, 600 units would be provided free of charge by the Canadian Council of Drug Abuse.

Bunn opposed the move on the grounds it was the same sort of philosophy as the mouthwash test and also that it would use a total immersion technique, but the other members approved it.

Jury Advises Added Exit

Alternate fire exits should be required for rooming-house suites in third-storey attics, a Victoria coroner's jury recommended Monday night.

The jury made the recommendation at the close of an inquest into the death of Fred Dewhirst, 82, of 325 Michigan, who fell from a window in his third-floor suite during a fire in the rooming-house in which he lived.

The coroner's jury ruled Dewhirst sustained his fatal injuries in his fall. They said Dewhirst might have moved as far away from the fire as he could, hoping help would come, and fell out the window.

The jury said: "We find Dewhirst died through injuries sustained about 2:30 a.m. Aug. 6 when falling from an apartment window in trying to escape from flames, the result of a fire being criminally set . . ."

Saanich Holds Bus Agreement

Vancouver Island Coach Lines will have to continue to service routes in Saanich until the end of 1972, according to its franchise agreement with the municipality, Comptroller-Treasurer John Tribe told Saanich council Monday night.

"The agreement with the coach lines is still in force," Tribe said.

The agreement, dated 1947, is for a 20-year franchise, he explained, with a proviso that unless either party gave the other one year's notice of cancellation, it would be good for another five-year period.

No such notice was given and the franchise still applies, Tribe said.

From Vancouver Monday, a PUC spokesman told the Colonist that more than 200 letters of protest had been received about the firm's proposal to discontinue bus service on Sept. 15 on routes from Victoria to Cordova Bay, West Saanich and Sidney-Deep Cove, all of which go through Saanich municipality.

Too Much Cruelty, Says SPCA

Live Kittens Thrown Into City Dump Fire

PORT ALBERNI — Last week an SPCA inspector picked up a starving mother dog with five live puppies and a male dog and took them to the Port Alberni shelter for care.

By the weekend, mother Sweetie could nurse her five now-lively puppies. And after eating "enough for three dogs" in small feedings for several days, the young male will be ready for adoption soon, Inspector Darryl Scott said.

Scott, who raises Brittany Spaniels himself has also adopted a couple of Siamese cats and a number of injured and baby birds brought in for care to the SPCA, has little sympathy with those who mistreat animals.

An empty pot stood between the two dogs, but "because of the length of the wire which held them, only the male could ever have reached it, even if there had been food in it," Scott said.

Originally, there were eight puppies, only six of them alive when Scott was notified. When he arrived, another puppy had died.

"I really didn't expect to save some of the others," Scott said, but hand-feeding, warmth and care for the mother, who could no longer feed the puppies, have solved the problem.

There have been too many cases of animal neglect and outright cruelty in recent months, Scott feels. "People have to drive right past the SPCA to reach the city dump, yet we have had cases of live kittens thrown in a container onto the fire at the dump."

Under the heat, the container, possibly a plastic garbage bag, burst open, and the kittens scrambled out and were rescued by the caretaker, who turned them over to the SPCA. All were treated and lived, but two later developed distemper and died.

Another pair of pets, both rescued after being left at the dump, have found a good home with the dump's caretaker. Scott showed off Mutt-Mutt, a frisky little spaniel-dachshund cross, and Puss-Cat, a grey and white kitten, as they frolicked together outside the caretaker's shelter.

"People are so scared we might charge them something that they go to no end of trouble to avoid us seeing them when they want to drop an animal off to us," Scott said.

"We do have a scale of fees, but what we ask for is a donation, and if people can't afford the fee, we gladly take whatever they can afford, in most cases."

Two boxes were found recently in the carport where the SPCA truck stands when Scott went from his house on the property to the office.

One had three well-fed kittens in it. The box beneath was empty. A big hole showed how the occupant, or perhaps occupants, got out.

Recently, the SPCA put some cat cages up outside, behind a tool shed, so people bringing kittens and cats after hours can leave them safely. In case of emergency, Scott is on call on a 24-hour basis.

What they need now is a sign, directing people to the available cages. "Signs are expensive, of course," Scott mused. "What we need is a nice friendly bank, who'd like to donate a 'Night Deposit Box' sign they have no use for."

"Wherever does it all come from?" she wanted to know.

Qualicum Beach Club

Rotary Sale Tops $4,000

QUALICUM BEACH — The annual Rotary auction and rummage sale celebrated its 21st birthday Saturday by breaking all records.

In a five-hour session of bidding and buying, a capacity crowd of nearly 500 pushed the proceeds up to $4,402 with the final count expected to exceed $4,500.

Bell pointed out that although the Qualicum Beach and District Club has only 34 members and is one of the smallest in Rotary International, the sale still seems to get bigger each year. The first one, held in 1949, netted little more than $600.

Thousands of items, from desks to dresses and television sets to toasters are donated by local residents every year, prices in the rummage section are kept low and the event has become known as a bargain hunter's paradise.

One visitor from California, eyeing the racks of clothes and the long rows of tables piled high with items, was amazed that such a small community could put on such a big sale.

Loffmark Vetoes New Hospital

By JOHN MATTERS

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark within three days changed his mind and said "no" to the idea of building a new extended care hospital in Saanich, it was learned Tuesday.

The proposal was put to the minister as a possible method of ending controversy over the future development of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The Colonist learned that Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, chairman of the regional hospital board and Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, deputy chairman, saw Loffmark in his office Thursday, July 30.

Curtis pointed out that there was considerable acreage bounded by Admirals Road, Colquitz Creek and the Trans-Canada Highway that already was owned by either B.C. Hydro, the provincial government or Saanich.

The idea was that this site could be obtained at no cost and would be an ideal location for the extended care beds proposed for St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Priory.

The regional representatives said this would be an alternative to spending $1.6 million for the grounds of the present St. Ann's Academy and then put another $1.9 million into the building to house the 150 extended care beds that would adjoin St. Joseph's.

Such a development would have given taxpayers, in the one package, the 75 beds that were planned for St. Mary's Priory.

Bennett Honored Freeman of City

● Inner Harbor proposal survives row in council. Page 21

● Death sentence dealt Begbie's south side trees. Page 21

At a special meeting, Victoria city council unanimously passed a resolution bestowing the city's highest honor on the premier.

The resolution stated the award was given to the premier "in recognition of his fine qualities of mind and the eminent public services rendered by him to the citizens of Victoria and the province of British Columbia as a whole."

A formal ceremony during which Bennett will receive his freeman scroll will be held Oct. 15.

Preparation for Thursday's meeting were made by city hall officials during the past few weeks. The matter was shrouded in secrecy usually preserved for important property acquisition matters.

Mayor Courtney Haddock told the meeting this was the first time any Canadian premier had become freeman of any capital city.

"The premier will have the right to vote in the city of Victoria, and we hope he will take advantage of that privilege," the mayor said.

The formal ceremony, he said, would be an outstanding event for Victoria. Some details, however, still needed more consideration.

"Frankly, we had a little

Does Council Realize Implications?

So the city of Victoria has honored another distinguished person with the highest award it can bestow, but has council considered all the possible implications?

● He may run as mayor or alderman without being a property owner in the city of Victoria.

● He can cast his vote in any civic election and vote on any money bylaw.

● He is allowed to march through the city with fixed bayonet and colors flying.

Who is to say that Premier Bennett won't run as mayor of Victoria in the next election and turn up at the polling station with a fixed bayonet to vote for himself?

And if anyone thinks that's bad, he should consider the privileges enjoyed by freemen in England before 1835.

In those days, a freeman pretty well ran the municipality in which he enjoyed his status.

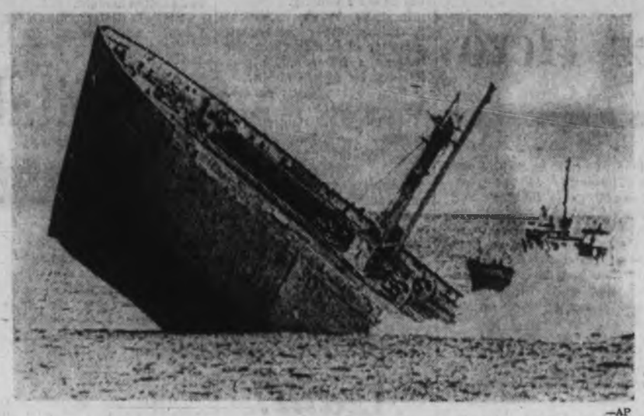

He was a man of great power in charge of trading, exempted from tax. He and his fellow freemen were the exclusive electorate exercising a vast influence in local government and parliamentary elections.

★ ★ ★

The freemen's wings were somewhat clipped by the Municipal Corporations Act proclaimed in 1835. In 1882, the act was amended further reducing the freemen's powers.

Never Again! U.S. Pledges

ABOARD USS HARTLEY (UPI) — With a navy patrol plane taking photographs for proof, a rusting Liberty ship carrying 67 tons of nerve gas slipped beneath the waves with a huge splash and sank to the bottom of the Atlantic Tuesday. The United States assured the world it would never again dump chemical weapons in the sea.

The SS Lebaron Russell Briggs, its hold flooded with water, plunged straight down in a charted munitions dump area 282 miles off Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 1:53 p.m. PDT, about four hours after seacocks and valves were opened.

The stern submerged first, sending a spray of water 40 or 50 feet into the air, before the 26-year-old vessel sank three miles and hit the ocean floor eight minutes later.

Perhaps because of water pressure or the jolt of the impact, four water collection bottles for gas leak tests rose to the surface two hours too soon. Others were to be released automatically over eight hours.

No leaks of poisonous gas or any other hitches were detected at the end of a controversial journey that began early last week by train from army arsenals in Kentucky and Alabama.

Hundreds Die

RAIN TOO LATE

CAIRO (UPI) — It rained in Yemen for the first time in three years — but it was too late.

Too late to help the starving population, and too late to save the crops.

The Middle East News Agency said Tuesday a four-hour downpour soaked the parched nation near the tip of the Red Sea on the Arabian Peninsula, but it did not say when.

Officials in the capital of Sana said it was the first rain in the country for three years, and the heaviest in 10 years in a land where summer temperatures reach 113 degrees Farenheit daily.

Medical authorities say 600 persons — and possibly as many as 1,000 — have died of starvation in recent weeks.

Agriculture Minister Mohammed Juneid said Tuesday, "The rain was too late to help the farmers. The planting season has passed without any rainfall and now it's too late and we do not have enough seed."

International relief agencies' representatives said as many as 1.8 million people are nearing starvation because of the drought. The agencies have begun pouring supplies into the country, now dependent on international help after its fourth disastrous harvest.

A broadcast from Sana, monitored Monday night, said West German planes carrying U.S. food aid had begun arriving regularly at Sana airport. Common Market aid, amounting to 14,000 tons, was due to arrive at the end of this month.

U.S. Observing Egyptian Lines

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States officially disclosed Tuesday it is flying reconnaissance planes over the Suez ceasefire front to watch for violations of the Mideast truce.

"They're flying on the east (Israeli) side of the ceasefire line, said Robert J. McCloskey, state department press officer.

The main object of the surveillance is the Egyptian side of the Suez line. Israel claims Egypt has been building up its missile strength within the 32-mile zone supposed to be at a military standstill, thus breaching the truce which began Aug. 8.

★ ★ ★

U.S. sources said the aerial cameras are well able to take photos of the Egyptian zone from the area six miles or more east of the Suez line, where Israeli planes are allowed to fly. The U.S. officials contend their air intelligence is better than Israel's.

A long-awaited state department statement giving the U.S. conclusions about the Israeli complaints now is in final stages of preparation.

The U.S. conclusions were given to Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin by Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisko, officials said. Rabin arranged to fly back to Israel at once.

McCloskey refused to tell U.S. reporters such details as the type of plane involved in the reconnaissance missions or where the aircraft are based. He did say the Egyptians have been advised of the flights.

At the United Nations, a spokesman said Tuesday Israel has made its third complaint to the United Nations about the alleged movement of Egyptian missile launchers closer to the Suez Canal in violation of the ceasefire.

Israel again delayed Tuesday the nomination of its

Full Report Study Urged By Labor, Management

● Trudeau's threatened postal crunch just around corner? Page 19

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Leslie Peterson Tuesday urged labor and management in all sectors of the British Columbia economy to take "a long hard look" at a report on strife in the forest industry before they consider strikes or lockouts.

Peterson made the request after releasing the 28-page report by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz. The B.C. Appeals Court judge was appointed special mediator July 7, following breakdowns in negotiations between the International Woodworkers of America, representing 28,000 workers, and Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agent for 116 coastal companies.

The report recommends a nine-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year contract, resulting in a 60-cent increase in hourly rates, with an additional 30 cents for tradesmen.

The union originally asked for a $1 increase in one year on base rates ranging from $3.12 to $4.80. The average rate now is $3.54.

If approved, the proposed contract will be effective from June 1970 to June 1972.

Peterson said he had no hesitation in calling on the IWA and FIR to accept the "generous but realistic" recommendations of the Nemetz report. It would be "unthinkable" for any work stoppage to occur in the coast forest industry, he said.

He also hoped the report would mark "the beginning of the end of an extremely difficult summer in industrial relations in B.C."

There was no comment from presidents of Vancouver Island locals of the IWA. The representatives are still meeting in Vancouver to discuss the report and a spokesman said it would "some days" before a comment would be made.

Other recommendations in the report:

● Appointment for a three-year term of an arbitrator to settle grievances arising from the master agreement, in an effort to head off wildcat strikes;

● A one-half-per-cent increase in vacation pay for employees with one to four years' service;

● An urgent call for a

Three Die in Dogfight As Fokker Hits Copter

DUBLIN (CP) — Two aircraft being used in the filming of a simulated dogfight for a movie about the First World War crashed near here Tuesday, killing at least three persons.

Police identified the dead as cameraman Skeets Kelly and director Burch Williams, both Americans, and Gilbert Ghoman of France.

The victims were in a helicopter, piloted by Ghoman, filming the dogfight scene when the craft crashed with a German Fokker biplane. Both aircraft plummeted into the Irish Sea over Wicklow Harbor, 20 miles south of Dublin.

A fourth man was reported missing. He was identified as James Liddy, a senior pilot of the Irish army air corps, who was piloting the Fokker.

Both machines plunged into the sea and sank immediately.

Several dummy runs were made over the picturesque bay before Liddy's plane came in on a double loop and struck the hovering helicopter.

Freed Lion Turns First On Door-Opening Owner

HALMSTAD, Sweden (UPI) — A self-styled animal psychiatrist who threatened to let his lion loose if he was not granted permission to open a local zoo, carried out his threat Tuesday. But he was severely clawed and bitten himself, police said.

The man, identified as Goesta Backer of Steninge outside this southern town, opened the lion cage in his garden when he was informed by local health authorities that his application had been turned down.

Minutes later he was attacked by the lion and severely clawed and bitten, police said.

He managed to call for an ambulance in his house "but rescuers could not get him out as the lion trotted around in the garden," police said.

Despite his injuries, Backer tried to lure the lion back into the cage but failed and was attacked again.

Finally he managed to crawl out of the garden and police sharpshooters moved in and killed the animal, the spokesman said.

Police said they did not know why his application had been turned down but added that authorities "for several years had been trying to get rid of the animal."

Loffmark Vetoes New Hospital

By JOHN MATTERS

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark within three days changed his mind and said "no" to the idea of building a new extended care hospital in Saanich, it was learned Tuesday.

The proposal was put to the minister as a possible method of ending controversy over the future development of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The Colonist learned that Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, chairman of the regional hospital board and Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich, deputy chairman, saw Loffmark in his office Thursday, July 30.

Curtis pointed out that there was considerable acreage bounded by Admirals Road, Colquitz Creek and the Trans-Canada Highway that already was owned by either B.C. Hydro, the provincial government or Saanich.

The idea was that this site could be obtained at no cost and would be an ideal location for the extended care beds proposed for St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Priory.

The regional representatives said this would be an alternative to spending $1.6 million for the grounds of the present St. Ann's Academy and then put another $1.9 million into the building to house the 150 extended care beds that would adjoin St. Joseph's.

Such a development would have given taxpayers, in the one package, the 75 beds that were planned for St. Mary's Priory.

Bennett Honored Freeman of City

At a special meeting, Victoria city council unanimously passed a resolution bestowing the city's highest honor on the premier.

The resolution stated the award was given to the premier "in recognition of his fine qualities of mind and the eminent public services rendered by him to the citizens of Victoria and the province of British Columbia as a whole."

A formal ceremony during which Bennett will receive his freeman scroll will be held Oct. 15.

Preparation for Thursday's meeting were made by city hall officials during the past few weeks. The matter was shrouded in secrecy usually preserved for important property acquisition matters.

Mayor Courtney Haddock told the meeting this was the first time any Canadian premier had become freeman of any capital city.

"The premier will have the right to vote in the city of Victoria, and we hope he will take advantage of that privilege," the mayor said.

The formal ceremony, he said, would be an outstanding event for Victoria. Some details, however, still needed more consideration.

"Frankly, we had a little

Does Council Realize Implications?

So the city of Victoria has honored another distinguished person with the highest award it can bestow, but has council considered all the possible implications?

● He may run as mayor or alderman without being a property owner in the city of Victoria.

● He can cast his vote in any civic election and vote on any money bylaw.

● He is allowed to march through the city with fixed bayonet and colors flying.

Who is to say that Premier Bennett won't run as mayor of Victoria in the next election and turn up at the polling station with a fixed bayonet to vote for himself?

And if anyone thinks that's bad, he should consider the privileges enjoyed by freemen in England before 1835.

In those days, a freeman pretty well ran the municipality in which he enjoyed his status.

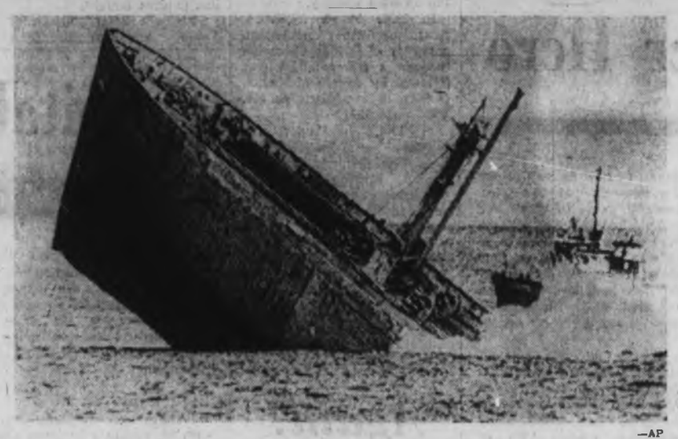

He was a man of great power in charge of trading, exempted from tax. He and his fellow freemen were the exclusive electorate exercising a vast influence in local government and parliamentary elections.

The freemen's wings were somewhat clipped by the Municipal Corporations Act proclaimed in 1835. In 1882, the act was amended further reducing the freemen's powers.
